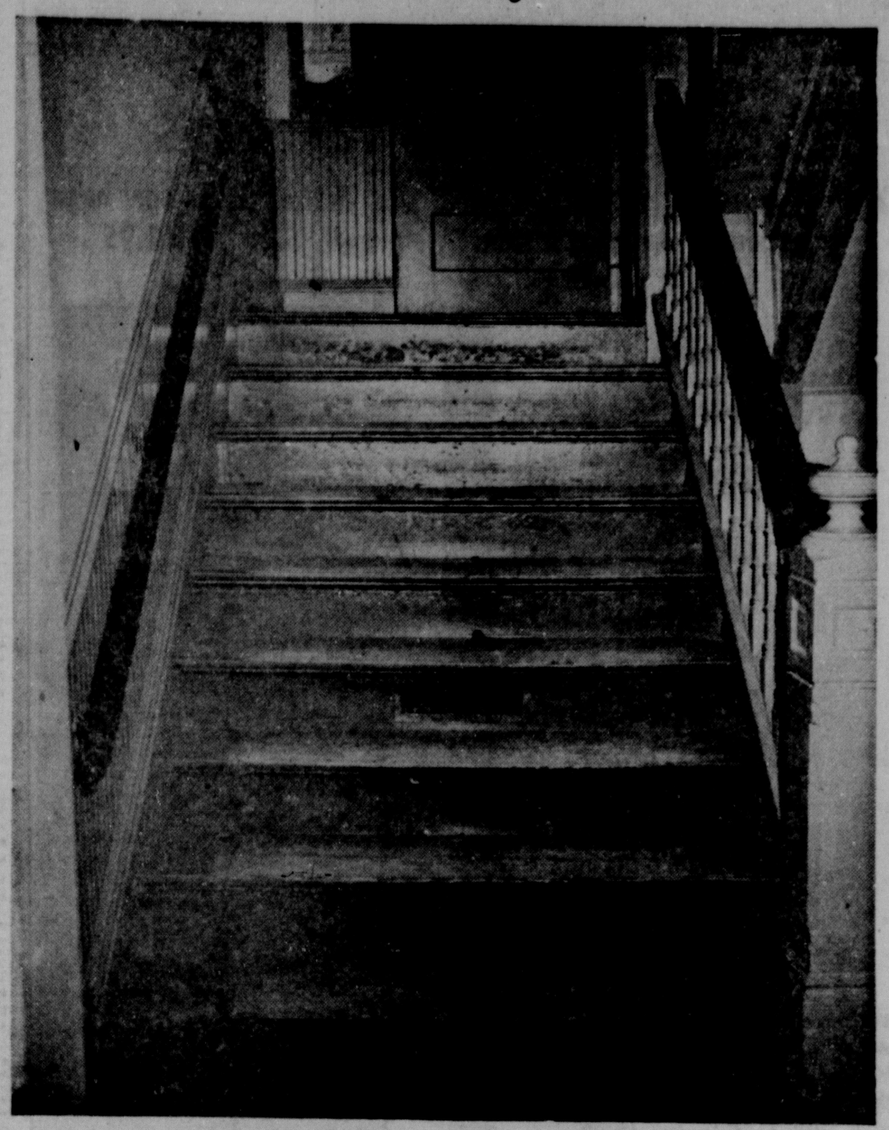
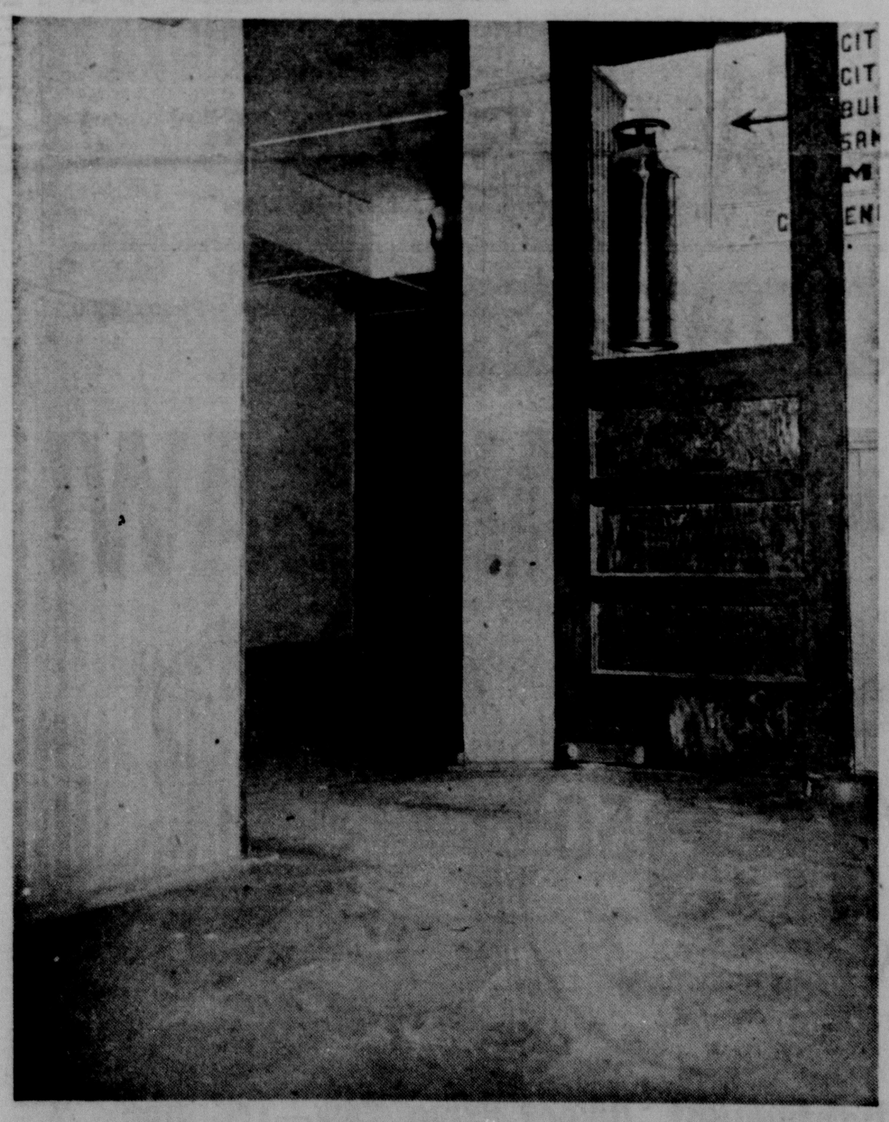
The Shame of Sedalia



WELCOME TO OUR CITY!—This is the "gateway" to Sedalia's administrative facilities—the creaking, broken, sagging staircase in City Hall that leads to the city offices on the second floor.

This section of the stairs is usually in the gloom but is brightly exposed here by a series of photographic flashes. The proposed new municipal center building would have modern offices on the ground floor.



WATCH YOUR STEP!—Another construction oddity of Sedalia's aged City Hall is this "bi-level" floor on the second floor. It is neither safe nor attractive, yet it is in one of the most-used hallways in the building. A special election on a bond issue for a new municipal center building will be held Tuesday. Additional pictures of the shameful conditions at City Hall that need correction will be published in tomorrow's Democrat-Capital. (Lehmer photos).

Used Clothing Sought By Welfare Office

The Welfare Office is getting many calls now for clothing. Anyone having used, but wearable, clothing is asked to call the Welfare Office, telephone 496 or 497.

The county court furnishes a room at the courthouse for cothing where it is kept that those in need may be fitted out in the size they wear.

Miss Roseanne Dugan, director of the County Welfare Office, said that the need for cothing is very great at this time.

Two Fatal Injuries In Wreck

Car-Truck Collision Kills K. C. Woman, Children Injured

A Kansas City mother and one son are dead as a result of a car-truck accident about 6:15 p. m. Friday on State Highway 135, 14 miles south of Stover. Another son is in critical condition, and her husband, who was driving their car, and the driver of the truck sustained painful injuries.

The mother, Mrs. Arlene Crabtree, 28, of Kansas City, died in an ambulance enroute to the Gunn Clinic in Versailles from the accident.

The son, Allen Wayne, 4, died at St. Mary's Hospital, Jefferson City, early Saturday from head injuries.

Rodney Ira Crabtree, 8, remains in critical condition at the Jefferson City hospital, also suffering head injuries.

The husband, Ira N. Crabtree, 31, received a compound fracture of his right knee and multiple cuts aobut his face and body.

Edward R. Meeks, 41, Route 1, Versailles, driver of the truck received a fracture of his right foot.

It was reported, according to the State Highway Patrol, Crabtree was driving a 1949 Studebaker sedan and was headed south while the truck, a 1948 Ford pickup, driven by Meeks was headed north, when the collision occurred.

Sgt. James E. Seeley, Eldon, investigated the accident it was reported at Troop F, Jefferson City. Sgt. Seeley, according to information he could obtain, reported the truck was headed down a hill and apparently went into a skid sideways and the vehicles collided.

Both the truck and Studebaker were demolished.

The injured were all given emergency treatment at the Clinic and then sent on to Jefferson City to the St. Mary's Hospital.

The children, Rodney Ira Crabtree, eight, and Allen Wayne Crabtree, four, were the first to be given treatment and sent on to Jefferson City.

Crabtree and Meeks were later removed to Jefferson City after being treated at the Clinic.

Dr. Jack Gunn and Dr. Ruth Kauffman, treated the injured.

They were taken to the clinic and later to the hospital in the Kidwell Funeral Home ambulance and the Scrivner Funeral Home ambulance.

Fire Damages Large Home On Broadway

Fire of undetermined origin caused well over $3,000 damage to the residence and contents of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crawford, 1321 West Broadway, about 9:55 p.m. Saturday. Although the residence is only partially furnished, no one was residing at the home, Mr. and Mrs. Crawford residing in an apartment at 400 Dal-Whi-Mo-Court.

The alarm was turned in by Mrs. M. E. Gouge, 810 South Carr. Mrs. Gouge reported a girl came to her door and told her the house across the street was on fire, and looking out could see a flame, and she went to her telephone and turned in the alarm.

Late Saturday it was found a rear door glass had been broken out and it is believed someone had entered the place and either set the fire or may have dropped a cigarette or match from which it started. One closet off of a room appeared to have been ransacked.

The fire companies arrived at Broadway and Carr and for several minutes did not see where the fire was, the residence being far back from Broadway and the location being given as Broadway and Carr. Then the firemen noted the flames at the rear of the home and soon had two lines of hose laid out to fight the fire.

It started in an upstairs rear room on the southeast corner of the house. It had apparently been smothering for some time before breaking out in flames. The fire

Reds Oust Marshal Zhukov For Barring Party Control

He Is Ejected From Central Committee, Ruling Presidum

MOSCOW, Nov. 2—(AP)—The Communist party has ejected Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov from its Central Committee and ruling Presidium because, it charged tonight, he tried to eliminate party control over the armed forces.

This demonstrated "insufficient party spirit" and "rudely violated the Lennist party principle for direction of the armed forces."

"The Central Committee has established that the cult of comrade Zhukov's personality was cultivated in the Soviet army with his personal participation," a party resolution made public tonight said.

"With the help of sycophants and flatterers, he was praised to the sky in lectures and reports, in articles, films and pamphlets, and his person and role in the great patriotic war were over-glorified," it said.

Thus was the popular World War II hero thoroughly downgraded. There was no hint as to what his future would be. He was dismissed as defense minister a week ago today and tonight's announcement said only that the party secretariat had been instructed to find him other work. The party chieftain, Nikita Khrushchev, said last Tuesday that job would fit the 60-year-old marshal's training and experience.

The formal announcement said the resolution condemning Zhukov had been "adopted unanimously" by members and candidate members of the Central Committee.

The resolution said Zhukov's conceit caused him to consider himself "a single hero of all victories achieved by our people and their armed forces under the leadership of the Communist party."

It followed up the charge that he violated the Leninist principle for party control of the armed forces by saying:

"Because of this Zhukov did not fulfill the trust placed in him by the party. He turned out to be a politically bankrupt representative with a tendency to adventurism in his understanding and evaluation of the most important problems of foreign policy in the Soviet Union as well as his direction of the Ministry of Defense."

$250,000 Cost

City Gets Lights At No Extra Cost

The City of Sedalia is receiving approximately a $250,000 street lighting improvement at no extra cost to the taxpayers. Through negotiation between the city and Missouri Public Service Co. an agreement was reached whereby the city would order new street and traffic lights and the power firm would pay an increased fee to the city for the right to do business here.

Net result, according to estimates of the city and power firm officials, is a gain of several thousand dollars in cash and modern street lighting. It is expected that in 1958 the payment of fees to the city may be $100,000 or more annually under the terms of the new franchise.

New Flourescent type lighting is now being installed in the downtown district. For several weeks the clatter and bang of air hammers has disturbed the normal activity of Sedalians and visitors to the city in the downtown area, but it is a 'necessary evil' of the project.

First it was necessary to dig holes in order to build a concrete base capable of holding the big steel poles that will support the lights. Next step is to dig trenches in which to lay the conduit for the wiring.

Missouri Public Service had a choice of digging into the sidewalks or the streets and it was decides that it would cause less inconvenience to excavate a narrow trench next to the curb than it would be to dig up sidewalks.

Placing the coduit in the sidewalks would have required working around parking meters, pipes and valves.

After the conduit is laid, it is being topped with steel wire reinforced concrete and then covered with asphalt material simiuar to the street. It is said to be stronger than the street itself.

Providing weather or some unforseen obstacle doesn't slow up work, it is planned to have the conduit work completed by Jan. 1, and completion of the whole project is April 1.

The new traffic lights will be of a design that will be visible to drivers or pedestrians at all times. Instead of the present one signal for each direction, there will be two visible from each direction.

Also planned in the program is the installation of mercury vapor lights for Broadway, but this part of the program will have to wait for the State Highway Department's widening of Broadway.

Boonville Man Heads State Press Group

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 2—(AP)—E. J. Melton, Boonville, publisher of the Cooper County Record, today was elected president of the Missouri Press Assn., at its 91st annual convention here.

Other officers elected were: James C. Kirkpatrick, Windsor Review, and E. L. Dale, Carthage Press, vice presidents; Harry Guth Sr., Perryville, the Perry County Republican, treasurer, and Mrs. J. J. Graff, wife of the publisher of the Hermann Advertiser—Courier, secretary.

Attending the meeting from Sedalia was George H. Scruton, editor of The Democrat-Capital and a past president of the Missouri Press Assn.

K. U. Love, business manager of The Democrat-Capital, participated Friday morning in a panel discussion at the convention and returned to Sedalia Friday evening.

Sen. Stuart Symington was the speaker at a luncheon at the Muehlebach Hotel.

Convention delegates this afternoon adopted resolutions urging establishment of a Mark Twain shrine in Missouri and decrying the secrecy provisions of Missouri's new juvenile code.

The 200 members of the association approved a suggestion the state of Missouri appropriate $200,000 for a Mark Twain shrine at Florida, Mo.

The resolution concerning the juvenile code asserted the secrecy provision violates "the rights of Missourians to know. In no way is it in keeping with the basic strength of a free people in building a greater democracy. It helps the evil forces of secrecy."

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—Secretary of State Dulles left Walter Reed Army Hospital today after an overnight examination which, doctors said, showed him to be in "excellent shape."

Man Is Held In Hospital After Crash

Earlier Back Injury May Be Hurt Again; Cause Unknown

An accident in the 200 block on South Lamine about 3:55 p. m. Saturday turned into a chain of events, with one car crashing into a parked vehicle, shoving the second car against a third automobile. Damages were extensive to two of the cars.

Lee Garland McCoy, Jr., 21, 429 East St. Louis, driver of the car was taken to Bothwell Hospital. McCoy was injured April 3, 1957, in a one car accident near Warrensburg in which he suffered the fracture of four veterbra.

He is being detained at the hospital for obesrvation in belief he may have caused a reinjury to one or more of the previous vertebra.

What caused the accident Saturday afternoon has not been explained to police who conducted an investigation, other than McCoy was headed south on Lamine when suddenly the crash occurred.

The 1949 tudor Ford car driven by McCoy crashed into the left rear of the 1955 Plymouth sedan of Herman Geiser, 2100 East 16th, which was parked just across the alley in the first parking space on the west side of Lamine. The Geiser car was knocked forward and smashed into the rear of the parked car, a 1953 Chevrolet sedan of Lawrence Pummill, of Houstonia.

The front end of the Ford was smashed in and the car was towed to the Howerton Service Station. The front end and the rear end of the Plymouth were extensively damaged and this vehicle was towed by the Howerton wrecker to the Bryant Motor Co. The Chevrolet was driven off on its own power.

Ewings ambulance took McCoy to the hospital where Dr. T. J. Hopkins rendered a medical examination and had McCoy admitted and his neck placed between sand bags to keep it straight and still.

United Fund Drive Draws Over $40,000

More than $40,000 in the United Fund Drive has been reported to the headquarters—but the goal is $75,750.

In every division there are still some who have not turned in their reports. Workers who have money to turn in are asked to call the United Fund headquarters, telephone 4500.

Mrs. John Welch, general chairman of the drive, asks the cooperation of workers in making their contacts and getting their reports into headquarters.

The United Fund was created for the purpose of saving time of both workers and those contributing otherwise a dozen or so calls would have to be made by workers from each of the participating agencies. These agencies must be supported and it was found several years ago that it would be easier for everyone to combine the efforts in one drive.

Looks for School Pressure

Sen. Fulbright Fears Civil Rights Debate Will Immobilize Congress

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark) said today he fears the next session of Congress may be "practically immobilized" on pressing domestic and foreign problems by renewed controversy over civil rights.

Fulbright, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee and chairman of the Banking Committee, said in an interview he looks for introduction of a series of bills aimed at enforcing racial integration in the schools and public places throughout the South.

"I am afraid that if this course is followed Congress is going to be practically immobilized while we have another battle over civil rights," he said.

"We have some vastly more important things to do than to spend our time wrangling over civil rights, including catching up with the Russians' Sputnik and their missile developments.

"I would hate to think that such important chairmen as Sen. Russell (D-Ga) and Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.) would be forced to divide their attention betwen the nation's military needs and the civil rights controversy, but it looks as if that is what might happen."

The two Georgians head the Armed Services Committees of their respective houses. Both are all-out opponents of civil rights legislation.

Fullbright did not comment on President Eisenhower's use of federal troops in the Little Rock, Ark., Central High School integration dispute. But Sen. Flanders (R-Vt) said that situation was one that would have to be reckoned with.

"I hope we'll digest our present civil rights meal without reaching out for more," Flanders said. "Civil rights is not going to be the important subject for legislation in the next session.

"The cold war, the Russian missile advances, farm price supports and other matters should have the primary attention of Congress."

Reporters, Photographers Invited

State Department Ends Secrecy About Storage Room Full of Gifts

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—The State Department evidently decided today it was silly to guard with the deepest secrecy a storage room full of gifts made to U. S. officials by foreigners over the years.

The department announced that arrangements are being made for reporters and photographers to go into the storage room-probably early next week—and report on the articles held in trust there by the department's protocol division.

Among other things newsmen expect to see are watches and robes presented to Secretary of State Dulles, Undersecretary Herter, Dep Undersecretary Loy Henderson and Asst. Secretary William Rountree by King Saud of Saudi Arabia when he was in Washington early this year.

In addition to announcing its new policy decision through the press office, the State Department said it is not really correct to think about the warehouse as containing 6,000 gifts, which U. S. officials had turned over after receiving them from foreign governments or leaders. The actual fact, said press officer Lincoln White, is that there are between 5,000 and 6,000 decorations and medals, which go back 40 or 50 years and only about 20 or 30 gifts. He thus made a distinction which department officials previously had not made when they talked of a warehouse full of around 6,000 gifts.

The whole subject has achieved nationwide interest in the last few days because of disclosure that the department's former deputy protocol chief, Victor Pudse, had received an automobile from King Saud last summer. Purse, who insisted he saw nothing wrong in accepting the gift, is being reassigned to another job in the department.

Saud gave gifts to a number of people who helped out during his state visit to Washington. Money which he provided for security officers who guarded him was turned over to the State Department and is still in the safe.

The department said that robes and watches distributed by Saud were "impounded for a time but anybody who wanted them back could, later on, go and get them."

Asked whether Dulles had withdrawn his robe and watch, White said that so far as he knew such gift combinations were presented by the King to Dulles, Henderson, Herter and Rountree and that none of them had been withdrawn.

Health Service Says Second Flu Shot Is Needed

WASHINGTON (AP)—Many persons who have been vaccinated against Asian flu should get a second shot, the Public Health Service says.

The recommendation came in a statement yesterday which said all manufacturers will have a new more powerful vaccine in production by Dec. 1.

Surgeon General Leroy S. Burney said earlier that some of the new vaccine should be ready for release by the end of this month.

The PHS recommended a second dose not less than two weeks after the first for two groups:

(1). Those who received only one-tenth of a cubic centimeter between the layers of the skin, and (2) special risk groups such as pregnant women, the aged, and those suffering certain chronic ailments who receive one C.C. under the skin.

The PHS said the second dose should be one C.C. of the old vaccine or one-half C.C. of the new vaccine, injected under the skin.

For those using the new vaccine, the Health Service recommended a single dose of one C.C. under the skin, except in the case of young children.

Youngsters should get two doses of one-tenth C.C. between the layers of the skin, with an interval of a week between the first and second dose, the PHS said.

Meanwhile, the surgeon general reported that an estimated 8½ million Americans went to bed for a day or more with colds, influenza or similar diseases during the week ended Oct. 5. Burney said the total compared with about 380,000 new cases per week in mid-July.

Engineering Teachers Practice on Side, Income Survey Shows

CHICAGO (AP)—A survey showed today that many teachers of engineering boost their incomes by nearly half by practicing engineering on the outside.

The study, by the American Society for Engineering Education, was reported to a conference on engineering and science education here.

William H. Miernyk, director of the society's committee on the development of engineering faculties, suggested that the opportunity for outside income be used to persuade young men to become engineering instructors.

"More than 80 per cent of engineering teachers earn income beyond their teaching salaries from the practice of engineering," Miernyk said.

Rail Giants Considering Big Merger

NEW YORK (AP)—Two rail giants, their profits off, are considering a merger that would create the world's largest railroad in revenue and assets.

Citing common problems and changed economic conditions, the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads yesterday announced they have begun studies looking toward a possible merger into one consolidated system.

The two roads are the largest in the country, based on annual revenue. Their combined assets are in excess of 5¹ billion dollars.

The announcement by James M. Symes, president of the Pennsylvania, and Alfred E. Perlman, president of the Central, was made after the New York and other stock exchanges had closed for the day.

Stocks of the railroads on the New York exchange were both off 12.5 cents. Previous announcements of planned mergers have been reflected on the exchange by flurries of activity.

Wall Street observers took a rather skeptical view of the proposed merger, pointing out the many roadblocks that would have to be cleared—approval by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the possibility that the Justice Department could intervene on antitrust grounds.

Railroad and investment men indicated it could be years before the Central and Pennsylvania operated as a single company on the same tracks.

The ICC has long held that competing lines should not be permitted to merge. The commission has refused to approve the effort by Robert R. Young, chairman of the Central, to merge the Central and the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway because, the ICC said, the result would be loss of "extensive competition" between the two railroads.

Union Leader Predicts Ouster For Teamsters

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Harold Gibbons, a vice president of the Teamsters Union, predicted last night the AFL-CIO will expel the Teamsters from membership next month.

Gibbons, considered by some as the top aide to Teamsters president James R. Hoffa, said expulsion would cause "the end of the united labor movement."

The AFL-CIO Executive Council suspended the Teamsters Oct. 24 until Hoffa and other allegedly cor-rupt officials are ousted from the trucking union.

Gibbons spoke to a local Teamsters meeting here. He charged that the Senate Rakkets committee, headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), wants to "dirty up" the American labor movement and prepare the way for federal anti-labor legislation, particularly a national right-to-work law.

"It is unfortunate," Gibbons said, "that the American labor movement has not had the courage to stand up and close the ranks."

If expelled from the AFL-CIO, Gibbons said, the Teamsters will not lose strength. "We built the union by ourselves. We'll be powerful enough to handle our business after we're out."

Further action on the Teamsters is scheduled at a full meeting of the AFL-CIO Dec. 5.

Jury Finds Two Men Guilty of Conspiracy To Kill Attorney

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A criminal court jury last night found two men guilty of conspiracy to kill Ray Dickey, a Washington attorney.

George Laris, 43, a Miami Beach contractor, and Spiro Halikas, 45, each were sentenced to a year in prison. Laris had denied the charge. Halikas did not take the stand.

The two were arrested after Alfred J. Corradi told police he had been offered $1,000 to attack Dickey.

Corradi testified he pretended to carry out the assignment but Dickey actually was unharmed.

The lawyer said Laris threatened him last year during a conversation about payment for construction work at a race track in San Juan, P. R. The contractor has contended Dickey tried to trick him out of holdings in the stock ownership of the corporation controlling the track but said he bore the attorney no enmity.

Her Sentence Is 28 Days for Artistic Beating of Policeman

LONDON (AP)—A blonde, 5 foot 2 private in the Women's Royal Army Corps was sentenced today to 28 days detention for administering an artistic shellacking to a 6 foot 1 military policeman. He had to be patched up in a hospital.

Pvt. Mavis Ashton's court-martial yesterday developed this testimony: When Lance Cpl. Anthony Hutton, the military policeman, remonstrated with her on the street, she kicked his legs, kicked him in the stomach, kicked him in the back, pulled off his red cap and jumped on it. Then she submitted peaceably to a military policewoman.

Mavis, 18, told the court she couldn't remember anything about it because she was drunk.

Blame Fire Damage To Home of Negro On Work of Arsonist

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — The dynamited home of a Negro family in a former all-white section was damaged by fire which officers blamed on an arsonist early today.

The house was damaged by an explosion Oct. 19, and has never been occupied by Mrs. Cleo Prince and her seven children.

No arrests have been made in either case.

Two houses belonging to Negroes were dynamited in the same Fountain Heights section last April.

Fire Marshal A. Rosenfeld said the fire was "definitely an act of arson," and caused more than $1,000 damage.

Mrs. Prince said she bought the house without knowing about the previous dynamitings. She said that a white man working in the neighborhood told her she would be unhappy if she moved into the house.

Mary Baker Eddy created the name of Christian Science in 1866.

Delayed Medal

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Joseph DeCosi got his medal, the Army's Bronze Star, but nobody seems to know why it reached him 13 years after the award was made. He also isn't quite sure just what combat incident brought him the medal. He was fighting in Italy when the award was made on May 13, 1944.

WINTERIZED — Lt. Cmdr. S. W. Marshall sports that "wintered look" as he makes his rounds during Operation Deep Freeze III at McMurdo Sound, Antarctica. Judge Rules Speed Proof Is Required

Magistrate Frank T. Armstrong ruled Saturday morning that the testimony alone of a state trooper is not enough evidence to convict a person of violation of the state speed law.

In his ruling, Armstrong instructed the troopers present that on a charge of excessive speed the presence of the officer making the radar reading and legal proof would be required.

The ruling was made in a case against Fred Guy Wheelock, Kansas City, who was charged with driving 71 miles per hour on a state highway where the speed limit was 65 miles per hour.

Trooper Pete Stohr testified as to the violation, but his testimony was ruled as hearsay evidence. Trooper Stohr did not make the radar reading but received the information from another trooper in the radar car by way of radio. Trooper Herb Walker made the reading.

Wheelock pleaded guilty to the charge but the judge refused to accept his plea and ordered a plea of innocent entered in the record.

Wheelock is president of Wheelock Bros. Inc., a midwest trucking firm operating out of Kansas City.

Questions And Answers On Election

A special election will be held in Sedalia Tuesday on a proposed $1,150,000 bond issue for the construction of two new fire stations and a municipal center building. Below are some questions and answers regarding the election.

Q. Whose idea was it to have this election and why?

A. This bond election stems from a report by Hare and Hare, municipal consultant Engineers that in 1956 surveyed the City and gave a written report, that is available for your inspection, regarding the needs, both present and future of our City. In this report was outlined the need for a civic center, municipal offices and fire stations. This report was studied very carefully by your City Planning and Zoning Commission, and from engineer's recommendations came these proposed buildings.

The reason "WHY"? is that the need is very acute for additional fire fighting facilities that would be centrally located. The present Municipal office's are located unhandy on a second floor level in a building that is a disgrace to a city of not just our size, but any size. There is no "center" for community activity at the present. Combining the need for a "center" and the Municipal office's together is a much more economical method than to try to build the buildings needed separately.

Q. Where will these buildings be located?

A. The Municipal Community Center will be located in the "down town" area, easily accessable from the shopping and business area.

The two fire stations, one for East and one for West, Sedalia, will be located centrally in their respective areas, with respect to present need and in line with expected future growth.

Your City Planning and Zoning Committee unanimously agree to postpone any decisions on site until after the election because they wanted the people to "vote" on the project and not the difference in locations, since the buildings will all be centrally located with respect to their use.

Q. How much will this cost?

A. The cost to the individual taxpaper will not exceed 20c per $100.00 assessed valuation on your property. By taking your last years tax assessment you can figure your cost.

Example—Property assessed at

$1,000	$2.00
1,500	3.00
2,000	4.00

Q. Will this proposed Municipal Community Center actually bring in industry to our community?

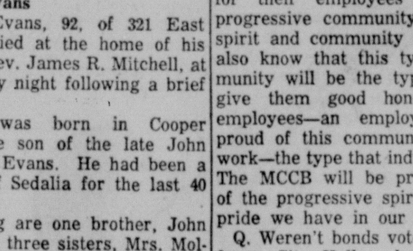
A. There is no one facility that will in itself bring industry to a community. One of the factors an industry looks for is, a good place for their employees to live—a progressive community with good spirit and community pride. They also know that this type of community will be the type that will give them good honest sincere employees—an employer that is proud of this community and his work—the type that industry needs. The MCCB will be proof positive of the progressive spirit and civic pride we have in our community.

Q. Weren't bonds voted one time for a City Hall and if so, what happened to the money?

A. Yes, bonds were voted for a City Hall in 1939 in the amount of $75,000 but, since the estimated cost of the project was based on WPA labor, and WPA labor was disbanded right after the election, the bonds were never issued. Since the bonds were never issud, naturally, no tax money has been spent on a City Hall.

When you have an egg white leftover, you can make a frosting from it this way. Put the egg white with a dash of salt and a half cup of currant jelly in the top part of a small double boiler; beat constantly over simmering water until the frosting stands in straight peaks.

Invalid fare: spread toast with butter and place in a soup plate or other deep bowl. Cover with scalded milk to which a few grains of salt have been added. You'll need about half a cup of milk for a slice of toast.



Extended Terms

Many families appreciate the availability of extended terms at the Ewing Funeral Home. One of the most important feaures of our extended payment plan is that it does not follow any set rules—payments are always arranged to meet the family's requirements.

New Traffic Safety Award Is Received

Sedalia has again been honored, through the efforts of the Sedalia Police Department, with another sweeping award on safety. The latest award made to the City of Sedalia comes from the National Police Officers Association and is known as the "National Walker Safety Award."

The scroll is worded: "Walker Safety Award, Presented to, Sedalia Police Department Missouri.

"For having rendered Meritorious Service for the public welfare by materially reducing traffic accidents, fatalities, and promoting highway safety in their community during the year 1956.

"May this award, which is sponsored jointly by the Walker Manufacturing Co., Racine, Wisconsin, and the National Police Officers Association of America, encourage law officers to continue their splendid work and to be constantly alert in promoting safe motoring to the American public."

It is signed by Frank J. Schira, president; Chief Walter H. Cliff, chairman; and Gerald S. Arenberg, secretary.

The letter received by Chief of Police Edgar Neighbors, in part stated: "Each year at this time the National Police Officers Association of America reviews the enforcement records of police departments throughout the United States. Our Committee on Safety then examines the records by population size for outstanding reduction of deaths and injuries.

"Your police department has been chosen to receive our National Walker Safety Award for the best program of traffic safety enforcement within your state for 1957. Our official certificate is enclosed with our congratulations. G. S. Arenberg, Executive Secretary."

It is noteworthy that though the years of 1954, 1955 and 1956 and up to November 2, 1957, Sedalia has not had a fatality through traffic mishaps, and injuries reported have been cut each year, as well as reportable accidents.

Apples to be stewed should be peeled and cored and then cut in quarters or eighths. Simmer the fruit in a sugar syrup just until they are tender so that they retain their shape.

High Altitude Rockets Going Up This Week

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—Four or more small, high altitude research rockets will be sent into the ionosphere next week in an effort to find out whether man can make the same trip.

Dr. S. Fred Singer, University of Maryland physicist, says the rockets will seek data "which is vital for successful operation of manned space ships which will some day be flying through those regions."

The series of rocket launchings from a converted Navy LSM off the coast of Virginia were started last Tuesday but were interrupted by bad weather.

Two - stage Terrapin rockets, which are 15 feet long and can carry a payload of 4 to 24 pounds, will be fired as well as a newly-developed rocket configuration dubbed the "Oriole" by Maryland scientists. It consists of a Terrapin and a smaller Loki rocket and is expected to soar to about 9 miles.

Weather permitting, the series will be resumed Monday and will continue through Wednesday.

One of the experiments calls for an explosive payload which blasts apart at the peak altitude, showering dozens of steel pellets into the atmosphere at speeds of 27,000 m.p.h. These artificial meteors, or "comet tails" will be photographed by ground stations. Their performance is expected to disclose temperatures, air pressure, turbulence and other physical data of the upper atmosphere.

In other experiments, Dr. Singer's group will load the nose of the rockets with a chemical bomb which will dump sodium and nitric oxide into the atmosphere. These chemicals will create a glow which can be photographed and tracked from the ground.

The photographic records later will be put through a spectroscope analysis which is expected to disclose the concentrarion of oxygen in the ionosphere.

Police Say Inquiry Into Anastasia Death Takes Definite Turn

NEW YORK (AP)—Police say their probe into the slaying of mobster Albert Anastasia has taken "a turn in a definite direction," but they decline to elaborate.

The police statement yesterday was coupled with a wish to question Frankie Carbo, 53, reputedly a former associate of the slain Anastasia in the old Brooklyn Murder, Inc., and with shadowy associations in the prize fight field.

Carbo reportedly lives in Hollywood, Fla., and has been absent from his Broadway haunts even before two gunmen riddled Anastasia with bullets as he sat in a Park Sheraton Hotel barber shop chair a week ago Friday morning.

Police also disclosed yesterday that the FBI was "assisting" in the murder investigation. Inspector Frederick Lussen emphasized the FBI was assisting rather than assuming an active role in the probe, and added:

"We will ask the assistance of other law enforcement agencies when we feel it will be of benefit in this case."

TV Actress' Husband Arrested for Assault

NEW YORK (AP)—The husband of Bess Myerson, TV actress who was "Miss America of 1945," was arrested today on her complaint that he grabbed her by the throat in the bedroom of their upper East Side home.

The husband, Allen Wayne, 39, who gave his occupation as salesman, was booked on a charge of third degree assault, a misdemeanor. He was freed in $500 bail for a hearing Monday in upper Manhattan court.

Home Decorators Believe In Using Rainbow Colors

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

What's in the stars for home decorating in 1957?

If the National Home Furnishings Show is one indication, you'll live with color. You may even shriek with it.

If one has a taste for strong colors, owns a terrace, patio or loggia or has inherited some odd looking furniture such as Gothic chairs, one may really do his home up stylishly, suggests the show, where some of the country's outstanding decorators and manufacturers exhibit.

Colors employed in many of the exhibits — orange, vnolet, dark green and red — overwhelm, although room effects are attractive. Decorator Ellen Lehman McCluskey uses the deep tones from a medieval painting to carry out her Renaissance theme in a contemporary drawing room. Walls are dark green, and wall lights of plastic simulate stained glass windows.

John Wisner combines chrome yellow rubber tile, pumpkin and white carpet. Nancy McClelland uses a startling wall paper in a fantasy pattern of brilliant colors on a black background.

Bertha Schaefer designs a room using a sofa in gold-orange nylon, placed against an orange wall. Yale Burge's efforts include a dark gold floor and wall of gold felt. Hector Grant has chosen red and white for a dramatic bedroom-living room. His classic Louis XVI daybed is recessed in a niche. Melanie Kahane combines shades of green, blue and yellow with burgundy accents and favors Gothic chairs.

Decorators Jerome Manashaw and James Daggett borrow from the rainbow to create their airy dining room. These decorators use many colors — striped inlays in white vinyl floors, many-hued striped material on the upholstery of chairs, wall dado and at the door. The ceiling is covered in it to achieve a canopy effect, too much of a good thing.

PLANTATION ROOM—Decorated by William Pahlmann of the A.I.D., it has a terrace. Furniture is English, contemporary. White wool rug with red flowers is Spanish import.

A number of decorators play up the outdoor theme with terraces off dining, living or play rooms to complement those areas. William Pahlmann does it in a plantation living room, using English and American contemporary furniture with an imported Spanish rug of white wool with large red flowers. Raymond Toucher's formal morning room has an alternative — go outdoors to the terrace in nature's own setting if the Venetian furnishings indoors gets boring.

And that seems to be the key to 1957 decor — plenty of color indoors. If you want a nice serene atmosphere, just go outdoors for a change of scene in nature's own setting.

Sedalia Phone Customers Get Dial Pamphlets

Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. is sending all Sedalia customers printed instructions on dialing, preparatory to the opening of the new dial center here Dec. 1.

Norman Pitcairn, local manager for the company, said special information on Direct Distance Dialing is being sent to all one and two-party, non-coin customers. In booklet form, the information includes details on how to dial long distance calls.

A separate booklet is being mailed to all customers, giving complete details on dialing local calls.

When Sedalia telephones convert to dial Dec. 1, all telephone users should begin to dial two letters and five figures to reach the party they are calling. For example, the number TAylor 6-9800 will be dialed T-A-6-9-8-0-0.

Until Dec. 1, of course, customers will continue to place their calls with the operator, as in the past. Since the new dial equipment at the central office still isn't connected with the local telephone network, dials on telephones here can't be used yet. In fact, movement of the dial may disrupt service on the line temporarily, Pitcairn said.

Church Integration Decision Postponed

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The Lutheran Church - Missouri Synod's Southern district has postponed until next year's conference a decision on church integration.

At the conference Friday delegates voted to wait until there is more discussion on the matter. The issue cannot be brought up until the next conference.

The district, which has responsibility for Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and Florida, instructed the board of directors, however, to negotiate with the Negro conferences in the area to see how they feel about integration of the church system.

The district also decided to ask its board to negotiate with the Lutheran synodical conference's missionary board to see if the district could supervise the Negro program in the south.

The Rev. Edgar Homrighausen of New Orleans was installed president.

Mizzou Defeats Colorado Buffs 9 to 6

Tigers Start Drive in 3rd

By FRANK PITMAN

BOULDER, Colo., Nov. 2—(AP)—Missouri's Tigers cashed in a fumble for a touchdown and a block punt for a safety to conquer Colorado, 9-6, today on a slick, muddy field that stalled the high-powered Colorado running attack.

Missouri's conservative strategy in the freezing weather paid off in the third quarter when end Bill McKinney pounced on Colorado tailback Bob Stransky's fumble on the Buffalo 40.

A 16-yard pass from quarterback Phil Snowden to full back Hank Kuhlmann highlighted Missouri's drive for the touchdown. Kuhlman shot over left tackle from the 5 to score.

Guard Charlie Rash then booted his 14th straight conversion of the season to put Missouri in front 7-6.

Missouri fattened its lead to 9-6 on a fourth quarter safety when tackle Bob Lee blocked Colorado quarterback Boyd Dowler's punt from his end zone. The ball rolled out of play.

Colorado took a 6-0 lead in the last 50 seconds of the first half after being stopped six inches short of a touchdown late in the second quarter.

A 15-yard personal foul against Missouri moved Colorado to the Tiger's 6 from where wingback Eddie Dove skirted left end on a reverse to score standing up.

After a scoreless first period, Colorado took command in the second quarter, but couldn't reach scoring territory until the final minute of the half.

Guard John Wooten recovered a Missouri fumble on the Tigers' 11 to give Colorado the break leading to the touchdown. On fourth down on the Missouri 7, Colorado faked a place kick with the kicker, Ellwyn Indorf, passing to Dowler. He was knocked out of bounds six inches from a touchdown.

Missouri kicked out to the 39 where Colorado halfback Howard Cook ran back to the 27. After two ground plays, a 15-yard personal foul against Misosuri moved the ball to the 6 where Dove plowed over.

The play was a pitchout reverse used for the first time this season and Dove went over with ease.

Colorado's first half dominance faded in the second half against Missouri's tactics of playing for a break. Colorado in the first half ran 34 plays against 13 by Missouri.

Statistics of the Missouri-Colorado game:

Kansas Crew Blocks Kicks For Victory

LINCOLN, Neb., Nov. 2 (AP) — A fired - up Kansas crew, soon to loose its coach, blocked a pair of Nebraska conversion kicks today and turned the advantage into a 14-12 victory in a battle of win-hungry Big East Conference football rivals.

A Homecoming crowd of 31,000 sat in as Kansas, finishing out its last season under Chuck Mather, broke a five - year losing streak against the Huskers.

A 74 - yard drive on 14 straight running plays lifted the Jayhawks to a 7 - 0 first quarter lead. But Nebraska capitalized on fumbles to set up scoring drives in the second and third quarter, and not until the fourth period did Kansas pull ahead to stay.

Both of Dick Prusia's conversion kicks for Nebraska were blocked, while Wally Strouch made both his boots good and that was the difference.

Strouch, six - foot senior just returned to the Kansas lineup after injuries, plagued Nebraska all day. He scored the first quarter touchdown on a one - yard run around right end, and threw a perfect pass to end Jim Letcavits for the fourth quarter clincher.

Nebraska threatened stoutly in the fourth quarter, driving to a first down with only two yards to go for a TD.

When three plunges failed to crack the Kansas defense, George Cifra attempted a 16 - yard field goal, and it, too, was blocked.

The win gave Kansas a 2-2 record in the loop. Nebraska has won one, lost two.

Nebraska looked like no match for the speedy Kansas backs at the outset.

The initial 74-yard Kansas drive was a straight ground affair, through the Husker line and around it.

But Nebraska got back in the game when LeRoy Zentic recovered a Kansas fumble on the Kansas 20 and quarterback Roy Stinnett made the short drive good on a second quarter sneak of less than one yard.

Still another second quarter Nebraska surge deep into Kansas territory ended with Stinnett's fumble and John Traylor's recovery on the Kansas 8.

Kicks Are Winning Factor for Oregon In Stanford Game

PALO ALTO, Calif., Nov. 2 (AP)—Oregon's Ducks virtually wrapped up the Pacific Coast Conference Rose Bowl bid today as the talented toe of Jack Morris proved the winning factor in a 27-26 victory over Stanford.

The high-powered offensive battle before 56,000 fans, largest crowd ever in the Oregon-Stanford rivalry, saw each team score four touchdowns, all but one on sustained marches.

Texas A & M Wins Slim 7-6 Victory

Nation's No. 1 Team Trails Arkansas 6-0 At End of 1st Period

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Nov. 2 (AP)—Massive Jonn Crow, Texas A & M tanklike halfback, tore through a determined Arkansas line on a 12-yard touchdown run to give the nation's No. 1 football team a slim 7-6 victory over the die hard Arkansas Razorbacks today.

The Aggies, crowded by the fierce line play of the fired-up Razorbacks, were behind 6-0 at the end of the first period. Arkansas' touchdown was the only score against the Aggie defense by a Southwest Conference team this season.

When the Aggies clinched the victory with a pass interception in the last minute, it was a victory largely earned on the broad shoulders of Crow.

The Razorbacks had crushed the A & M offense repeatedly except for the big halfback who was called on 24 times to carry the ball.

It was a bitter loss for the Arkansas team that had moved against the tough Aggies with a superb charging line and the end sweeps and line thrusts of fullback Gerald Nesbitt and halfback Donnie Stone.

Crow ran for a whopping 116 yards rushing against Arkansas' best line play of the season. Quarterback Roddy Osborne again and again fed the ball to the Spring Hill, La., senior who was not thrown for a loss during the game.

Texas A & M	0	7	0	0	—7
Arkansas	6	0	0	0	—6

Texas A & M scoring—Touchdown: Crow (12, run). Conversion: Taylor.

Arkansas scoring — Touchdown Christian (1, run).

Unbeaten Auburn Wins Over Florida 13-0

AUBURN, Ala., Nov. 2 (AP) — Two lightning - like thrusts for touchdowns gave unbeaten Auburn an impressive 13-0 victory over Florida today. The game was not as close as the score sounds.

The victors, ranked No. 4 in the nation, dominated the game completely with their rock - ribbed line, reducing the Florida attack to impotence.

Sports Scraps

By D. KELLY SCRUTON

THERE'S going to be between 40 and 50 Sedalia men very unhappy today if their endeavors this morning do not return dividends—obtaining for Sedalia the 1958 Missouri State Bowling Tournament. At least then many Sedalia bowlers journeyed off to St. Louis Saturday to be on hand the first thing this moningr to vote for the convention.

One thing for sure, I bet the Missouri Bowling Association never since its organized ever had a city come to the State Tournament with a campaign for the tournament like the Sedalia delegation. This group went "loaded" with material, pictures and information on what the Association will miss if it doesn't vote to come to Sedalia.

They are distributing packets one piece of information has a beautiful drawing of the State of Missouri as a background with ten pins lineup and splattering, overlined with "Center of the State in '58" on the inside pages all necessary facts which make Sedalia attractive to visiting bowlers.

Chamber of Commerce material advertising Sedalia, matches, and other articles which lets the Captains of the many bowling teams know Sedalia wants the tournament.

Actually what I thought about telling last week was the great advantages the tournament will meant to Sedalia business. It might have given some of our competitors an idea too.

The Missouri Bowling Tournament is more than just a convention. It covers a period of at least eight weekends. It is almost like a convention each of the eight weekends as to the visitors attracted to Sedalia.

Reports have it that the 1958 tournament will attract at least 8,000 bowlers. This year the registration at St. Louis is expected to exceed 7,000. Every year there has been a steady growth in the participation of bowling teams and bowlers, especially as each year more new alleys are being built in the cities throughout Missouri.

—O—

WHAT it means to business is astounding when the figures are figured out. It means thousands and thousands of dollars put into circulation — new money in the area. Multiply the amount by seven as they say a dollar turns over in each community it comes out in the seven figure bracket.

As an example it was reported that this year at least 800 to 900 bowlers will participate each weekend in the tournament. These bowlers, it has been found on previous years surveys, bring with them on the great percentage their wives, and some often bring their children along. Oft times some of the teams participating are accompanied by a few close followers of a team as well as the sponsor.

With these additions to the actual participants it will make a visiting representation of between 1,500 to 1,800 people. But for figuring purposes only it will be 1,600 people and the money each individual will spend or a bowler and his family spends averages at least $15 each for rooms, meals, entertainment and possible some side expenditures of clothing or such.

At that average it would bring into Sedalia each weekend $24,000, eight weekends it would amount to $192,000 and turn that figure over seven times and we get an astounding figure of $1,344,000. Some returns on a tournament.

Therefore every Sedalia business man should be happy to know that these possibilities have been made through the construction of Sedalia's most modern bowling lanes, the Broadway Lanes with its 16 alleys. And Sedalia isn't short on alleys, in case the tournament should grow bigger than anticipated as we have an additional ten good, tournament regulation alleys at the Sedalia Bowling Lanes.

—O—

IT wasn't that Coach Ralph "Stub" Dow was afraid to let his Tigers play Raytown last Friday night—it would have been murder—but he had the interest of his boys at heart more than a football game. It was cancelled because the majority of the players either had the flu or were just getting over it, and playing would have done none any good and the material he would have had to be depending upon would have been murdered against the Raytown Blue Jays.

The players who probably would have had to carry the load are not yet seasoned, not prepared to undertake such a task, but I will say are a game bunch and would have been willing. They'll be our players next year, and good ones too.

Actually the condition of the Tigers against the Jefferson City Jays was not tops. There were boys who played that had no business even dressing out and should have been home in bed instead of out there working their hearts out in their physical condition. It wasn't good for them in their condition.

Even in victory, happy as they were, and as deserving as the team was the Jays I believe would rather have been tested by a full well Tiger squad. I don't say the Tigers would have won the game, as I stated before, because the Jays were fired up to win, but it would have been closer.

So no criticism of Coach Dow and his decision about Friday night. He was thinking more of his boys and your boys than he was of playing football.

Oklahoma Sweats Out 13-0 Victory Over Kansas State

Ohio Defeats Northwestern To Top Big 10

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 2 (AP) — Ohio State took the undisputed Big Ten lead and a giant stride toward the Rose Bowl today by blasting Northwestern's Wildcats, 47-6, for their fourth straight league conquest.

The victory, coupled with the 21-21 Iowa - Michigan tie, leveled the road to Pasadena for Ohio. The Bucks could lose one of their three remaining games and still get the Rose Bowl bid.

Don Clark, Ohio's junior halfback was the big difference today as he scored four of the seven touchdowns which routed the Wildcats.

The Buckeyes, blasting the Northwestern forward wall to pieces, moved 394 yards in the seven scoring drives.

Showing devastating power on the ground and a dangerous passing attack for the first time, the Buckeyes went 29 yards in four plays, 72 in 11, 46 in 7, 74 in 10, 50 in 2, 63 in 4 and 60 in 5 for their scores.

Northwestern made a few threats and most were halted by fumbles, interceptions or penalties, but the Wildcats put together one startling drive which spanned the intermission between the third and fourth periods. On that one they went 74 yards in four plays with Ron Burton romping 26 yards around end, taking a 30-yard pass from Chip Holcomb and then banging 15 yards around end for the counter. Willmer Fowller had made three yards on the first play.

Army Stages 8 Score Win For President

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 2 (AP)—Army staged an eight touchdown review for President Eisenhower today, smothering Colgate 53-7 with halfback Pete Dawkins scoring three time and Bob Anderson twice, although the Cadets gave the ball away time after time on fumbles.

Quarterback, Dave Bourland directed a versatile attack that Colgate simply couldn't contain.

Dawkins, son of a Lt. Colonel in the Air Force and a top flight student in the class of '59 gave the Ike and the grade of '15 an eyeful. The 19 - year - old right halfback from Royal Oak, Mich., sped for three of the first four Army touchdowns and threw a lefthanded pass to Anderson for the fourth.

The President remained through the final stages of the one sided ball game played before 25,450 fans under leaden skies. The lights were turned on as it started to drizzle in the final period.

He saw his alma mater score a runaway 53 to 7 triumph and appeared to enjoy himself throughout.

A near-capacity crowd of 27,500 cheered as the President and Mrs. Eisenhower entered Miche Stadium about 15 minutes before game time. Eisenhower responded by grinning and stretching his arms overhead in campaign style.

The couple sat with other guests in a covered box at the top of the stands on Army's side of the field. The weather was overcast, turning to rain toward the end.

Eisenhower reacted to Army touchdowns by smiling and leaping to his feet. He and his wife munched hot dogs during the half.

Left-Handed Passes Give Drake Victory

DES MOINES, Nov. 2 (AP)—Drake quarterback Roger Labrasca's left-handed passes pierced Iowa State for a 20-0 victory. It was the undefeated Bulldogs' sixth consecutive triumph and came before a chilled Homecoming crowd of 7,500.

Drake, whose students ripped down the goal posts before the game ended, had two second quarter touchdowns nullified but then struck for two more in the same period.

LaBraska, whose touchdown passes to Marvin Shearer and Ron Lind were called back because of ineligible receivers downfield, hit Dick Reimer on a 17 -yard fourth down pass for the first score.

Hold Sooners To 0-0 Score In 1st Period

MANHATTAN, Kan., Nov. 2—(AP) The University of Oklahoma Sooners, anything but mighty today, sweated out a 13-0 victory over a souped up Kansas State college football team that battled its heart out for an upset that just wasn't in the books.

The Sooners, rated second nationally, struck for a touchdown in the second quarter and another in the third as they racked up their 46th consecutive victory before a silm gathering of 15,000 on a cold cloudy day.

Kansas State, with a mediocre 2-4-1 season record, played their usually mighty visitors to 0-0 first quarter tie and refused to let the roof fall in at any time as end Don Zadnik and halfback Ralph Pfeifer dominated the game with tremendous defense efforts.

Oklahoma scored its first touchdown early in the second period after its All-America candidate Clendon Thomas, ran back a punt 17 yards to K-State's 35. Thomas made the last six yards on a slice over tackle 10 plays later. Quarterback Carl Dodd converted.

A blocked punt eased the way for Oklahoma's other touchdown in the third period. Sooner guard Dick Corbett blocked Keith Wilson's punt and end Steve Jennings captured it on the Kansas State 43. After that it took six plays for the touchdown. Halfback Bobby Boyd got it from the one yard stripe. Dave Baker's placekick for the conversion was to the right of the goal posts and the scoring for the day was ended.

Kansas State frequently moved the ball between the 35-yard stripes and reached the Oklahoma 27 late in the third period before the Sooners, led by guard Bill Krisher, blanketed the attack.

Oklahoma picked up a commendable 232 rushing but as in the case of Kansas State's 120 yards, most of the ball moving was well away from scoring territory.

There were no long sparklers in this one.

The longest play of the game was 22 yard pass from Baker to Sooner end Ross Coyle in the second quarter. It did not figure in the scoring. The longest run was an 18 yarder in the fourth period. That one was out of the scoring picture too. Pfeifer was the leading grounder gainer with 53 on 14 carries. The unusually tough Kansas State defense held Thomas to only 43 yards on 18 carriers.

Oklahoma	0	7	6	0	—13

Scoring summary: Touchdowns—Thomas (6, run), Boyd 1, plunge. Conversion—Dodd placement.

Expect 50,000 Hunters

Conservation Commission Predicts Biggest Deer Season

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 2—(AP)—The State Conservation Commission predicted today its biggest gun deer season in history would open for five days Tuesday.

Dunbar "Dixie" Robb, the commission's deer specialist, forecast more than 50,000 hunters would be out seeking their one legal whitetail. He said somewhere between eight and nine thousand of them would be successful.

For the first time in many years, out of state hunters will be welcome in Missouri. But they'll have to pay $20.25 for the privilege.

Last year a few more than 49,000 Missourians took part in the gun season and about 8,000 killed deer.

Weather conditions this year should be more nearly perfect than in a long time, Robb said. And the deer themselves may offer more ready targets because of the weather.

Early cold snaps have robbed the forests of much cover, producing more open shooting. Rains throughout most of the state this weekend should knock more leaves off and muffle the footing in the woods, helping those hunters who like to stalk their game.

The early fall apparently has advanced the rutting season, too, Robb said. Thus, the buck deer will be a little less wary. That's been indicated already by the increased number of deer accidentally killed on the highways.

It's also apparent from the increased kills during the archery season which opened Oct. 1 and doesn't close until Nov. 30. The bowhunters have downed at least 40 deer, three more than the 1955 record and seven more than the kill during October, 1956.

Gun hunters can shoot from 6:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Archers can hunt from 5:30 a. m. to 5:30 p.m.

For both, there are these 13 counties in which only bucks are legal game:

Clark, Carroll, Chariton, Davies, Grundy, Howard, Lawrence, Lewis, Lincoln, Linn, Livingston, Pike and St. Charles.

In these 50 counties, bucks does or fawns are legal:

Barry, Benton, Bollinger, Boone, Butler, Callaway, Camden, Carter, Christian, Cole, Cooper, Crawford, Dallas, Dent, Douglas, Franklin, Gasconade, Hickory, Howell, Iron, Jefferson, Johnson, LaClede, Madison, Maries, McDonald, Miller, Moniteau, Montgomery, Morgan, Newton, Oregon, Osage, Ozark, Perry Phelps, Pulaski, Renolds, Ripley, St. Francois, Ste. Genevieve, the portion of St. Louis County west of State Route 141 and south of U. S. 61, Shannon, Stone, Stoddard, Taney, Texas, Warren, Washington and Wayne.

Following the pattern of several years counties like Camden and Ste. Genevieve probably will proland counties like Chariton, Johnson or Linn.

Every hunter must check his deer at a regular checking station in the county where he was successful with in 12 hours of the kill.

Legal guns must be either rifles using shells of at least 60 grams duce the greatest number of deer kills but the biggest deer probably will come from the rich grassweight, generally excluding the lighter "varmint" guns, or shotguns loaded with single slugs.

The commission hopes for a big increase in the number of hunters to harvest the ever-growing deer herd, plus a decrease in carelessness to prevent accidents.

Giardello Will Try For Win Over Graves In Title Shot Effort

DENVER (AP) — Middleweight Joey Giardello, striving for a title shot, puts his 9-fight winning streak on the line Tuesday night against Wilf Graves, 21-year-old Canadian.

Giardello, ranked No. 3, said he will take no chances against the unranked Graves, who fights out of Pittsburgh, in their scheduled 10-round match at the Denver Coliseum.

"I've got to win 'em all now, if I want a crack at the championship," Giardello said. The Brooklyn-born Giardello said at 27 he's "fighting the years as well as every opponent."

Graves still is smarting from what he says was a "home town decision" that charged him with a loss to former champion Gene Fullmer at Salt Lake City.

Georgia Tech Slams Duke From Unbeaten Ranks by 13-0 Score

ATLANTA, Nov. 2 (AP) —Striking by land and air, Georgia Tech slammed Duke from the unbeaten ranks today with a 13-0 upset victory over the nation's seventh ranked football power.

The Engineers pounded out one touchdown on the ground against the Blue Devil's vaunted defense, and took to the air for the other. Sub fullback Jim Benson dived over from the one for the first score, ending a 59-yard march helped along by a 15-yard personal foul called against Duke.

Dick Mayer said the birdie putt he sank on the 18th green at Inverness in Toledo to tie for the National Open title was a 10-foot putt with a four-inch break. He beat Cary Middlecoff in the playoff, 72 to 79.

MIDDLE MAN—Raul Macias hardens his middle with a sit-up as Trainer Adolofo Perez makes sure his feet stay on the floor. Macias of Mexico fights Alfonse Halimi, French Algerian, 15 rounds in Los Angeles, Nov. 6, for bantam title.

NO ASSIST—Jackie Mayes of Preston butted the ball with his head into the Sunderland goal before a tremendous crowd at London's Roker Park. But the referee ordered a free kick for Sunderland because Mayes jumped on the shoulders of that club's Willie Hedley in making daring play

MARYVILLE, Mo., Nov. 2—(AP)—The Maryville Bearcats overpowered the Warrensburg Mules 20-6 today in a homecoming MIAA game for their 11th victory in the last 12 games.

Maryville netted 383 yards to Warrensburg's 182, had one touchdown nullified by penalty, and twice was inside the Mules' 5-yard line without scoring.

Warrensburg's only scoring chance came on a fumble recovery at Maryville's 18, from where Jim Wilson scooted the 18 for a touchdown .

Maryville's touchdowns were made by Henry Saggau, 16-yard run; Fred Fuhr, 4-yard run, and Ken Sevens, 49-yard pass from Dick Powell.

Maryville fans gave Ryland Taffy Milner, their coach 21 years, a $500 set of woodworking tools at halftime.

Two Are Matching Pace

Mantle and Mathews May Threaten Homer Records Made by Babe Ruth and Mel Ott

By SHELDON SAKOWITZ

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP)—A few years ago it didn't seem possible that anyone would challenge Babe Ruth's major league lifetime record of 714 home runs or Mel Ott's National League career of 511.

Now there's a chance that Eddie Mathews of the Milwaukee Braves and Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees will threaten these marks.

Both Mathews and Mantle were 25 years old when the 1957 baseball season ended. Mathews has accounted for 222 home runs and Mantle 207. At the age of 25, Ruth had hit 103 round-trippers and Ott, the same age, had found the range for 221.

Mathews, in six complete seasons with the Braves, has averaged 37 homers. The muscular third baseman smacked 32 last season and his highest output was in 1953 when he slugged 47.

Mantle has been with the Yanks six full seasons and part of the 1951 campaign. The switch-hitting outfielder, plagued by injuries during his big league career, collected 34 homes in 1957. He belted 52 in 1956—his most productive season.

Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox, ranked fifth in the all-time home run listings and tops among the active players, added to his stature in 1957. The 39-year-old slugger hit 38 homers to give him a career figure of 456.

If Williams can duplicate that performance next season, he will tie Lou Gehrig for fourth place in the rankings. Gehrig had 494 during his lifetime.

Stan (The Man) Musial of the St. Louis Cardinals enjoyed a banner year as he vaulted from ninth to sixth, behind Williams. The 36-year-old stalwart delivered 29 four-masters to move past Ralph Kiner (369), Joe DiMaggio 361 and Johnny Mize (359). Musial's total is 381 and he is second to Williams among the active players.

The Dodgers' Duke Snider advanced to 11th place in the lifetime rankings. Snider, third among active players, amassed 40 home runs last season for a total of 316. He is 15 home runs behind Hank Greenberg, who is 10th with 331 round-trippers.

Ruth, of course, spent most of his early years as a pitcher with the Boston Red Sox and saw only part-time action in the outfield. The Bambino began his big-league career at the age of 19 with the Red Sox at the end of the 1914 season. He finished with the Boston Braves in 1935, retiring at 40. Ruth was 32 when he hit his record high of 60 homers in 1927.

Ott, whose entire 22-year career was spent with the Giants, played his first game in 1926 at the age of 17. Master Melvin was 38 when he stepped down as an active player in 1947.

Wisconsin Loses To Michigan State

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 2 (AP) — Jim Ninowski's passes, plus a powerhouse Spartan line that relentlessly wore down the Badgers, brought Michigan State a 21-8 victory over Wisconsin in a bruising Big Ten football game today before 50,000 fans at Camp Randall Stadium.

The Spartans, who are now 4-1 in conference action and are ranked sixth in the nation, moved a step closer to a possible conference and a Rose Bowl bid. The Badgers have a 1-3 record in Big Ten play.

Washington U. Wins Homecoming Game Over Omaha Team

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 2 (AP)—Washington University of St. Louis delighted a football Homecoming crowd of 8,500 fans today by rolling over outclassed Omaha University, 33-6.

Fullbacks Don Polkinghorne and Eddie Stein each scored two touchdowns and halfback Morty Ebeling the other as the Nebraska school lost its sixth game in a row.

Washington tallied once in the first quarter as Stein scampered into the end zone on a 16 - yard reverse after a poor Omaha kick.

Dick Hunt converted, the first of three for the afternoon.

The score spread to 14-0 on the first play of the second period as Porkinghorne rammed over from the four - yard line.

The Bears added two more touchdowns in the second quarter for a 26-0 halftime lead. Ebeling darted on an eight - yard scoring play and Stein picked his way 48 yards through Omaha defenders.

Washington added its last touchdown in the last quarter after a scoreless third quarter. Polkinghorne plunged for it after a 94-yard drive.

Postal Authorities Investigate Theft Of Two Mail Bags

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Nov. 2 (AP)—Postal authorities today were investigating the theft of two U.S. mail sacks, each containing from 500 to 600 pieces of mail, from a collection point in Shawnee, Kan., yesterday.

Johnson County deputy sheriffs said a witness told them the two sacks, tied to a mail collection box, were taken by a motorist who stopped and loaded the sacks into the trunk of the vehicle before speeding away.

The sacks had been left at the collection point for later delivery.

Witnesses said there were two men and a small child in the car.

No Strike Agreement Seen Until Monday

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 2 (AP)—Negotiations were resumed today in the threatened transit strike between representative of the Kansas City Public Service Co. and local 1287 of the Amalgamated Assn. of Street Electric Railway and Motor Coach Employes.

D. C. Rogers, state mediation chairman, said an agreement was not expected until Monday. No meeting is scheduled tomorrow.

Representatives for the bus drivers agreed to continue service past a strike deadline at midnight last Thursday until next Wednesday.

Navy Back Punctures Notre Dame Comeback

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 2 (AP)—Navy fullback Ray Wellborn of Houston, Tex., single - handedly punched Notre Dame's comeback bubble today as the sharp Middies handed the Irish their first defeat in five football games 20 to 6.

Wellborn, fleet 183-pound junior with a deceptive change of pace, scored all three Middie touchdowns, one on a 79-yard scrimmage run which erased a 6-0 Notre Dame lead and the two others on a one-yard plunge and a 32-yard pass from Tom Forrestal.

Gabby Hartnett hit .264 in 100 games in 1921 with Worcester, Mass., in the Eastern League in his only minor leage season and wound up in Baseball's Hall of Fame.

Clergymen Join In Statement On Integration

ATLANTA, Nov. 2 (AP)—Seventy-four Protestant Atlanta clergymen joined today in a statement on race relations calling for obedience to law, preservation of public schools, protection of free speech and maintenance of communication between white and Negro leaders.

The ministers, all white, also vigorously decried the idea that school integration would lead to physical amalgamation of the races—a key argument of the segregationists.

The group advanced a six-point declaration of principles in an interdenominational action without close parallel since the Supreme Court's outlawing of segregation in public schools shoved racial relations painfully to the fore in the South.

In a city of more than 400 churches, the signers of the unique statement do not constitute a majority of the Protestant clergymen but the group includes pastors of many of Alanta's largest churches and many longtime leaders of various sects. Denominations represented include Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Lutheran, Congregation and Christian.

The statement grew from informal discussions at meetings of the Atlanta Christian Council but was not presented on behalf of that organization or any other. Signers made it clear that the views are those of the individuals only and do not represent the official position of any congregation.

Chuck Stearns, 1957 men's national water ski champion, comes from Bellflower, Calif. He won the slalom, placed second in trick skiing and fifth in jumping.

Lenny Kanthal, Washington heavyweight, holds a decision over Pete Rademacher, Seattle heavyweight. They fought as amateurs. Both now are professionals.

Buffalo, N. Y., has been awarded the 1959 Woman's International Bowling Congress tournament, defeating Denver, 590 delegate votes to 213.

Dartmouth College teams took part in 99 events in baseball, lacrosse, track, tennis and golf during the 1957 spring campaign.

3—In Memoriam

IN MEMORY of our Son and brother S/Sgt. Harlan D. Burton, who was killed in action fourteen years ago today, November 3, 1943.
On this sad day 14 years ago
God called our boy away
He answered the call to Old Glory
To help us he did try
He gave his life fighting for his country
He died for you and I.
Our home is so lonely without him
Our hearts are so sad today
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever passed away.
Sadly missed by Mother, Father, Brothers and Sisters,

Flickering Light Experiment Almost Provides New Weapon

By STANLE YMEISLER

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—The white flickering light became a churning rainbow. Strange figures—in blue, in red, in violet—spun across the screen and fascinated me. Then I felt woozy.

"I feel as if I were about to get sick," I said.

"But you're not sick yet?" Dr. L. M. N. Bach asked.

"No, I'm not."

My reaction was similar to many other subjects in experiments at Tulane University, where scientists tried to help the Army, in the era of nuclear power, find a battle weapon based on psychological power.

The weapon is flickering lights.

The Army is looking for a weapon that would make the enemy too sick or dizzy or sleepy to fight. Dr. Bach and his associates hope their research is the first step toward that weapon.

Scientists long have noticed that some people are annoyed by lights that go on and off. A few can not drive their cars when sunlight flickers through a row of roadside trees. Others are made extremely uncomfortable by the flickering light of a movie.

In the Tulane experiment, subjects sat in front of a screen that shielded a light going on and off. The subject would press close to the screen and watch. The light blinked about nine times each second.

"I felt slightly dazed as if I were beginning to be hypnotized," said one subject. But he never was hypnotized.

"I felt as if I were going out into space somewhere," said another. But he did not fall asleep.

A reaction of "almost" or "as if" was the typical one in the experiments. Only rarely did a subject become sick or fall asleep. For the Army, "almost" and "as if" were not enough.

In a second experiment, researchers and their assistants tried to walk through a dark room cluttered with obstacles. As they began to pick their way, the flickering lights opened up. Several subjects became sick, lost their balance and took many minutes trying to move out of the room.

But then the researchers put through a group of students who knew nothing about the experiment. They had no trouble getting out. It was obvious the experimenters had trouble because they wanted to.

These findings and others were reported to a group of specialists recently brought here from across the nation. They had two suggestions: further research on what actually makes a person fall asleep or become unconscious and new experiments with th eflickering lights including an element of battle fear. Some said that while flickering light had little effects on students in a room, it still might send frightened soldiers into a panic.

Army officials have promised to decide—perhaps by the end of the year—whether to keep searching for a strange simple weapon or to flick out the whole idea entirely.

Food, Drug Administration Warns About Vitamin Pills

WASHINGTON — (NEA)—Many gullible, seriously ill Americans will surrender to disease this year because they answer a knock on the door.

Although they should be under a doctor's care, these people become easy targets for quack salesmen peddling cure-all vitamin pills. The pitchmen have developed a spiel so subtle and convincing they have even made a scapegoat out of a life giving necessity—food.

FDA BOOS LARRICK: Sometimes victims become salesmen.

The door-to-door selling of these fake wonder vitamins has spread to the extent that it has become one of the major problems of the United States Food and Drug Administration, which is not against vitamins but is against quacks.

FDA Commissioner George P. Larrick declares there are many people with unusual ideas about how to obtain wholesome food. He warns, "Unscrupulous promoters spread these ideas and then cash in by offering vitamin and mineral products as cure-alls for every kind of human ailment."

The FDA isn't sure how many pill salesmen are preying on a wishful thinking public. But it does know that several years ago one company was employing 15,000 of these self-styled "nutrition experts."

And reports from district offices show the number of people getting a chunk out of this million dollar racket is increasing. Even duped customers are being recruited into the salesmen's ranks.

The FDA is not worried about the pills themselves harming anyone. What concerns these health protecting officials are the false claims by which the vitamins are sold.

Salesmen use a scare campaign promoting the false idea that food has lost its nutritional value. The reasons they list contain a grain of truth exaggerated to the ridiculous.

First they point to the fact that some farm land contains poor soil. Then they twist this into meaning any food raised on it lacks needed vitamins. Also they convince customers that fertilizer poisons crops.

Another sales pitch harps on the idea that preparing food for market robs it of nutrition. Although some processes do reduce vitamin content, canning and freezing keep food at its peak of good condition.

Then there's the myth that all disease is caused by a chemical imbalance in the body due to faulty diet. Salesmen convince their customers that their rundown feeling or actual disease is due to a lack of vitamins. Since food has lost its health value, the only solution is to start swallowing the pills.

FDA officials warn this is the greatest danger of the vitamin racket. People who are really ill waste time taking the vitamins when they should be seeing a doctor.

This useless cure is expensive, too. Some pills sell for as much as $20 for a month's supply. The door-to-door prices are usually three or four times higher than those of drugstore vitamins.

The FDA emphasizes that it's not against all vitamins or door-to-door salesmen. Many are legitimate.

But when a salesman starts pushing pills because food is no good, an FDA spokesman warns, "Beware. It's bunk."

Woman Runs Race Track

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y. — (AP) — The only woman superintendent of a major thoroughbred track in this country was answering the telephone, opening her mail and giving an interview, virtually at the same time.

Mrs. Ann Murphy Clare, who has loved horses since she was 5, looks more like the striking, determined matron you'd see presiding at music or literary club meeting.

She supervises the efforts of 75 men and one other woman, her secretary, Mrs. Daisy Eaby, whose late first husband was jockey Buddy Eaby.

Mrs. Clare took over as superintendent when her husband, Tom, died in 1940. She gets up at about 6:30 most mornings. You're likely to find her near the barn at that hour, exchanging first-name greetings with owners, trainers and exercisers, or watching a horse working out. But come 7 a.m. she goes to mass in the nearby Catholic church.

ANN MURPHY CLARE—Boss of Saratoga Springs race track looks over her domain.

She grew up in a convent.

"I love every minute of it and I wouldn't want to be doing anything else," says the attractive, graying woman. "We try to keep Saratoga a chummy track. I like people to be smiling around here — even if they lose.

"Working with a lot of men doesn't bother me. I was brought up with five brothers."

One brother, Joseph, is with Saratoga's mutuel department. Another, William, is a placing judge, and a nephew, Francis Murphy, is her foreman.

It wasn't difficult taking over the job her husband held for 16 years. Her husband kept a track diary, which she has continued. She had attended to much of the letter writing as his secretary.

"I go at top speed all day," she says, "and when I get home it generally is more of the same.

"Can I cook?" She seemed genuinely surprised by the question. "If you can read you can cook these days. And I can darn socks, too."

Sex Research Institute Wins 5-Year Battle For Books, Materials

NEW YORK (AP) — Indiana University's Institute for Sex Research has won a five-year battle to gain possession of materials from abroad which the government sought to destroy as obscene.

The articles—foreign books and other items—were shipped here in 1951 and 1952, consigned to the late Dr. Alfred C. Kinsey, then president of the institute.

Customs agents impounded the materials, which included photographs, paintings, engravings and statuettes from Europe and the Orient.

The institute contended the data were necessary to its work.

In a 27-page decision handed down yesterday U.S. District Court Judge Edmund L. Palmieri ruled for the insittute.

The judge noted a general ban on importation of such materials, but said that did not apply when consigned to a bona fide educational and research group for study by scholars.

COMMUNICATIONS WEB—Criss-crossing the state like a spider web, Missouri's network of underground long distance telephone cable has made rapid gains in recent years. Another link in this storm-free service—from Rolla to St. Louis—went into service this fall. Solid lines in map above represent cable already operating. Dotted lines are extensions to the network planned for the next several years.

New 90-Mile Phone Cable Is Completed

Missouri's network of underground telephone cable was given a big boost early this fall when a new 90-mile segment between Rolla and St. Louis went into service.

Placed underground early this spring along Highway 66, the new cable underwent tests in late summer to assure best transmission.

Installed at a cost of over $1 million, the 90-mile link brings to over 1,650 miles the total amount of underground telephone cable giving many communities throughout the state long distance service uninterrupted by ice, snow and wind storms.

Norman Pitcairn manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company here, said plans call for extending arms of the web-like network into practically every section of the state within the next few years — providing hundreds more towns weather-proof long distance service.

Underground cable, though small in size, can carry many more conversations simultapeously than it has wires even though it takes two wires to carry each call.

This is possible because of electronic equipment called "carriers."

Carriers are best compared with radio sets. For example, radios could be placed in every room of a house and each tuned to a different program. This is possible because the programs from each station are transmitted through the air on different channels or frequencies.

In the telephone system, carriers work much the same way except that the conversations are transmitted over pairs of wires. As telephone calls enter the carrier system they are assigned frequencies or pathways on which they travel to their destination.

Clifton Daniel Tells Missouri Newsmen That Peace Is Possible

KANSAS CITY (AP)—The United States must always be ready to negotiate with Russia or any other country if there is a chance of easing tensions, Clifton Daniel, New York newspaper man, told members of the Missouri Press Assn. yesterday.

Daniel, son-in-law of former President Harry S. Truman, said he believes Russia and the United States can co-exist peacefully.

Russia is challenging this country for world leadership and we must meet the challenge, Daniel said.

Village Smithy Falling

ABILENE, Tex. (AP) — The once thriving blacksmith business in this West Texas town may be a dying trade.

There's plenty of business, but says John Conklin, who owns the largest of three blacksmith shops in town, "You just can't get young men to go into 'smithing'."

Jaycees Hear Conservation Agents Speak

Conservation Agent Chester Vermaas, Sedalia, and Conservation Field Supervisor Otis Thorburn, Warrensburg, presented a program on deer hunting at the regular meeting of the Jaycees Thursday evening at the Pacific Cafe.

Vermaas described the different types of deer found in various parts of the nation and compared them with Missouri deer. He also gave statistics about the deer population in various areas.

A color film shown by Thorburn depicted the proper way to hunt deer and pointed out some of the mistakes made by deer hunters.

Fifteen airmen from Whiteman Air Force Base were honored as airmen of the month. Those honored were: Peter J. Mahoney, Kenneth R. Toney, Edward R. Young, Jr., Donald Neirynck, Callis H. Borne, Willie A. Woodward, Arnold H. Seckler, Charles L. Young, Frank L. Johnson, Carter R. Boyer, Joseph Barboza, John F. Lindsay, William B. Brown, James W. Rogers, and Mac N. Callis.

Gene Knothe, director of the ways and means committee, reported on plans for Radio Day to be held at KSIS on Nov. 12. It was announced that the Jaycees would take over the station on that day and perform all the duties around the station and sell the advertising.

Proceeds from the event will be split with the Jaycees and they will use their share for expenses connected with the state Jaycee headquarters building.

Jim Askren, chairman of the state meeting committee, reported that the motels are nearly filled for the convention weekend of Nov. 22, 23 and 24. He also called a meeting of the committee for Tuesday. An attendance of 700 persons is expected for the convention.

Invocation was given by Bill Burkholder and program chairman was Ed Rogers. Dr. Kenneth Snyder had his father, Grant Snyder, as a guest for the evening.

Railway Officials Claims Interstate Commerce in Peril

CHICAGO (AP)—A Santa Fe Railway official said yesterday a strike of the line's nonoperating employes would threaten interstate commerce. The employes have voted 9-1 in favor of a strike.

Preston Shirley, attorney for the road's gulf lines, asked that a presidential fact-finding board be set up to study issues in the dispute.

Shirley made the plea at a hearing before the National (Railway) Mediation Board. The board said yesterday it will announce its conclusions after returning to Washington, D.C., for further study.

Shirley told the board the railway will agree to the union shop —which makes union membership a condition of employment— if no part of the members' dues are used for political purposes.

Lester P. Schoene, attorney representing the 15 unions, which claim 42,000 members, said the Santa Fe is the only railroad in the nation not completely unionized. He said a 1952 presidential fact-finding board had recommended union shops for all nonoperating—or off-train—employes. These include telegraphers signalmen, yardmasters, machinists, clerks and office workers.

Czech Efforts to Repopulate Towns Meet With Resistance

RED GHOST TOWN: A lone woman carries kindling wood through a street of deserted Cheb, a once thriving Czech border town whose pre-war population of 35,000 Germans was expelled or fled. Czechs are having troub le repopulating border towns.

PRAGUE (AP) — Thousands of houses stand empty in rural and small-town areas of Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia while the capital, Prague, is packed to capacity.

Referring to the "housing shortage," Premier Viliam Siroky last summer promised a 50 per cent increase in construction of state-owned apartment buildings.

At about the same time, 'Rude Pravo, Communist party mouthpiece, told its readers that hundreds of "fine little houses are waiting" for occupants outside of Prague.

Czech newspapers report that 120,000 Prague apartments are overcrowded and 11,000 people live in "emergency" quarters. And yet, between January and June, only 134 Prague citizens moved out of the capital into some of these "fine little houses."

Contradictory? "Frontier resettlement" is the keyword denoting the problem. It means the resettlement of the areas from which nearly two million Sudeten-Germans fled or were expelled after World War II.

Up to now, frantic Czech repopulation efforts have had little success. Most of the Sudeten towns now have half or even less of their prewar population.

The latest edition of the municipal directory of the Czechoslovak Republic lists 348 communities as no longer in existence. These include towns of 2,000 and more inhabitants.

Villages immediately adjacent to the border were razed to eliminate hideaways for refugees fleeing the country. Other abandoned communities are slowly crumbling or form part of large military training areas. The government has denied published reports that Soviet rocket bases have been set up in these areas.

Why are people hesitating to move into the frontier areas? Most Czechs agreed with the answer of a former Nazi persecutee: "People don't feel safe there."

This feeling is fanned by recurrent warnings of German "revisionism" and is apparently the chief motive keeping people away from the "fine little houses."

Revisionism, in Czech official terminology, may mean either a revision of the present border—although the Western Big Three have given assurance it is final—or a return of the Sudeten Germans to their former homes.

Prevents Interruption

Electronic Device Will Find Phone System Troubles

An electronic "Hawkshaw" will be on duty 24 hours a day to ferret out troubles before they affect service in Sedalia's new dial center which begins operation this winter.

"Because of this amazing 'trouble center', dial calls will speed without interruption, through the central office, even if a failure occurs in some part of the dialing machinery," Norman Pitcairn, local manager for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company, said today.

The trouble center will be located in the new Sedalia dial building, as part of a $3,000,000 installation that will bring both local and long distance dialing to Sedalia telephone subscribers.

"It keeps close watch on all dialing equipment. If anything goes wrong — even if one part of the equipment takes a second too long to do its job — the trouble center makes a detailed report of the trouble and immediately brings auxiliary equipment in to substitute for the parts that aren't working properly. By means of a flashing warning light, telephone company switchmen, working in the building, are alerted that equipment trouble has occurred," he said.

The trouble center is equipped with a card-punching apparatus which prepares a detailed diagnosis of the exact trouble, all in one second's time. The special card shows which piece of equipment is out of order and tells what's wrong with it.

Pitcairn said that without the automatic trouble center it might ake a skilled craftsman hours to spot a breakdown in the equipment, because of the thousands of miles of wire and the thousands of complicated circuits.

"To avoid this, our engineers have built the automatic trouble shooting device right into the dialing machinery. It operates so swiftly the customer will not be able to detect it if trouble should occur," Pitcairn said.

Teenagers Revive Suffragette Memories, Say They're Smart Enough to Vote at 18

By EUGENE GILBERT

Should the voting age be lowered from 21 to 18? This question has been kicking around in civic and political circles for more than a quarter of a century.

"If we're old enough to fight, we're old enough to vote," was a popular teen-aged refrain during World War II and again in the Korean War.

Two states, Georgia and Kentucky, have quietly turned the slogan into legislative action by amending their state constitutions to permit 18-year-olds to vote. In effect, both states have expanded their electorates by broadening the age group. This could be done because, contrary to popular opinion, the federal constitution sets no age limits on voting. So far, not enough elections have taken place in the two states to determine what influence minor-age voters can have on the outcome of an election.

Teen-agers across the country are overwhelmingly—almost unanimously—in favor of having the remaining 46 states join Kentucky and Georgia in passing similar constitutional amendments.

More than 98 per cent of the young people we contacted in a nationwide survey feel that at 18 a citizen is mature enough to take an active, voting role in government.

Even though the draft continues, teen-agers no longer base their main argument on the "old enough to fight" slogan. Now their refrain seems to be "if we're smart enough to graduate from high school, then we're smart enough to vote."

In fact, if teen-agers had their way age barriers to voting would be dropped to 18 but literacy requirements would be tightened to include educational prerequisities, something that no state now requires.

The fact that these young people put a high premium on education as a necessary preliminary step to voting may be unrealistic and would have the effect of disenfranchising a considerable segment of the electorate, but at least it demonstrates their belief that voting is a serious business.

Opponents of lowering the voting age to 18 have long argued that teen-agers are too frivolous, too immature, too concerned with less important matters to be allowed a direct voice in government.

Teen-agers contacted in our survey thought they should be permitted to vote at 18 for exactly the opposite reasons. At 18, they argued, a young citizen is closer to his civics book training, has learned a good deal about national and foreign affairs and is more prepared to vote intelligently than someone who has been away from school for a long time.

Almost all of the teen-agers taking part in this survey—99 per cent of the boys and 94 per cent of the girls—were insistent that education be added to the literacy requirements now written into the voting laws of most states.

How much education should a citizen have in order to be allowed to vote?

At least a high school diploma, answered 74 per cent of the boys and girls who favored educational requirements.

At least a grammar school education, answered 18 per cent.

Finally, 8 per cent went so far as to insist that a college education be required for voting. In effect, of course, they thereby eliminated themselves from the prospective voting rolls and kicked the voting age back up again to at least 21.

It is interesting to note that in plugging for an 18-year-old voting law, teen-agers would willingly give equal opportunity to both boys and girls. They were unanimous (we didn't count a single adverse vote) in the belief that if the federal constitution is amended to include the 18 to 21-year-old group it should not be done at the expense of the 19th Amendment, which gave the vote to women. In other words, both teen-aged boys and girls should be extended the voting privilege. They do not regard boys as smarter, more mature or more responsible citizens than girls — at least as far as voting goes.

What sort of voters would teen-agers make? Would they be conservative or liberal? Isolationist or internationalist? Democrat or Republican?

As we have already noted, neither Georgia nor Kentucky have held sufficient elections since expanding their voting age group to determine the nature and effect of the teen-aged vote.

But from previous surveys made by our organization some sort of pattern emerges showing how the teen-ager thinks and reacts to national issues.

For instance, in previous studies we learned that the average teen-ager—if there is such a person—is apt to be pro-labor but highly concerned over recent labor scandals. He is overwhelmingly in favor of the United Nations but doesn't know too much about its functions and operation. In the last election he would have voted for Eisenhower and probably is still heavily inclined toward the President, since Eisenhower on more than one occasion has gone on record favoring a lowering of the voting age.

On other issues, he is worried about the age of atomic warfare, concerned about his future job security, irritated by high taxes, cognizant of the problem known as juvenile delinquency (although he refuses to take the rap for it), divided on the issues of universal military training and foreign aid, and in general opposed to socialized medicine, dope peddlers and a teen-aged curfew.

In short, the teen-aged voter sounds hardly less informed or more controversial than any voter at any age.

Wanda Hancock and Jerry Wayne Goodson were present for the meeting too.

Mrs. George Buchholz was selected as the community leader and Mrs. Russell Lewis as assistant community leader.

Other adults attending were Ernest Schlender, Russell Lewis, George Buchholz, Mrs. Walter Goodson, and the Goodson children's grandmother.

American Tourists Tend To Ruin Antique Market

LONDON (AP)—Take a truckload of dollars and get to know your subject if you're heading for London this fall to buy antique furniture for the old homestead.

That's the advice of London expert Frank Conyers, a connoisseur himself and editor of the antique trade's principal guide to collectors.

Conyers explains the antique business brings out more Latin temperament in the British than moonlight on a Mediterranean skyline.

"I would say," he declares, "that Americans are on the whole poor bargainers. They tend to pay the price too easily and without regard to the value of the piece. The result is the market here is being spoiled."

Conyers says the answer is

Frank Conyers, London antiques expert, examines a possible "find."

knowledge. "It's inseparable from good antique buying."

"If you show the dealer you know something of the subject and don't look too eager, you'll get the furniture you want at the right price."

The right price, incidentally, will be a good deal cheaper than the cost of a comparable piece of furniture in the States.

In London there are three main antique centers. Swanky Kensington has acres of "Ye Olde Shoppes" and there are other colonies in arty Chelsea and in the quieter thoroughfares around Baker Street, home of the legendary Sherlock Holmes.

Each of these centers can set you up with sturdy old Chippendale, or if you prefer it, Sheraton or Hepplewhite furnishings.

But don't be deceived by the Chippendale label. Its a generic term nowadays, meaning the furniture was made by an 18th century craftsman after the style of the great designer.

You can buy a Chippendale mahogany sideboard of this order for as little as 40 dollars. Or you can take home six ladder-backed chairs of the Chippendale style and period for 150 dollars.

The genuine thing out of a Chippendale workshop—"just right" as the dealers say—rarely appears on the market. When it does, prices are astronomical. A Chippendale sideboard by the old master himself recently fetched $6,000 at a big London sale.

The same is approximately true of Thomas Sheraton and George Hepplewhite, who with the Chippendale family dominated the field of English furniture designing in the 18th Century.

One thing about London, however, is that you don't have to buy British. English dealers still dominate most European sales and more and more of the best French and Italian antiques are to be found in London sales rooms.

The French styles particularly are catching on—especially among visiting Americans. Anthony Cooper, a London dealer who does $300,000 worth of business with the States annually, will sell you an 1840 French escritoire, complete with cut glass candelabra, for $1,000.

"This is the sort of thing American women go for in a big way," he says. "It's gay and frivolous and expensive looking."

Not only that, it's cheap at the price. The same sort of thing with a label by any of the French masters—say Roussel, Boudin or Joubert—will shove another $3,000 on the tag before you can pull out the writing shelf.

But the beauty of antique collecting is you don't always have to buy in the "best" places. Outlying towns such as St. Albans and Brighton, easily reached from London, are crammed with antique shops.

Any one of them may contain just the chair or table needed for the sun lounge back home. And since not even the most experienced dealer is an expert in every branch of his varied trade, there is always the prospect of a knowledgeable tourist carrying off a big bargain.

THIS COMES HIGH: This lavish escitoire, a French creation of 1840, will cost you $1,000, without the tinkling candelabra. This sort of thing is much in demand.

Still Some Doubt

Human Space Travel Now Started With Experiments

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

NEW YORK (AP)—Human space travel has already partially begun.

Our jet pilots are flying so high that much of the earth's air is beneath them. They are already meeting and conquering some major problems involved in trips to the Moon or Mars.

Human volunteers in special experiments are producing answers as to whether, and how, humans can stand greater and more severe challenges higher in the void of space.

But don't fall for the pitch of some promoter offering you bargain-price reserved tickets to the Moon by 1960 or 1965.

It just won't be that easy.

Indeed, there are some scientists and experts who say space travel is forever out of the question—men couldn't stand it, or be protected well enough.

There's a middle opinion that human journeys into space are a very long way off—perhaps no earlier than the end of this century.

But enthusiasts say the first space Columbus—John or Ivan—has already been born or now is even in school. They see initial space journeys within five to 10 years.

Jet pilots are flying in such thin air that they must carry their own oxygen, use pressurized cabins and special suits, or else their blood would boil at these heights. Their planes are overcoming problems of heat from friction at high speed in the air they meet. The pilots are experiencing sensations of no gravity—weightlessness—at times in their flights.

Space flight means more or most of the same problems, intensified. But with new problems added.

Can human life withstand the radiation men will meet in space from cosmic rays, and from intense ultraviolet light and X-rays from the sun? Our blanket of atmosphere blocks out most of these rays which might quickly kill or damage the unprotected body.

How crowded is space with this cosmic dust, or with big meteor chunks traveling faster than any cannon shell, and just as lethal if they barreled through a pressurized space cruiser?

Baby moons—U. S. and Russian—equipped with sensitive instruments and radios, will report what these hazards are, or what unsuspected dangers may exist.

Under International Geophysical Year agreement, both nations are pledged to tell the world what their baby moons learn.

With that knowledge, scientists and engineers might devise materials and methods to safeguard human astronauts physically.

Monkeys have gone up 80 miles high inside U. S. rockets. Russians report sending dogs 130 miles high. Just in the last few days, a Soviet scientist said a next step could be to put dogs or other animals in baby moons, with instruments recording and reporting what happens to them.

Such animal trials could be arranged humanely to prevent suffering. But the real step would be human volunteers testing the practicality of space travel.

Could people psychologically withstand the peculiar challenges of space? Long trips mean a few persons cooped together in probably cramped quarters for days or months, in perhaps continuous peril, with sudden emergencies calling for quick, decisive, cooperative actions.

Picked men manning atomic submarines operate under similar conditions, and their answer is yes.

Women might be the first choice because, say male psychologists, they can tolerate boredom and monotonous tasks better. Another suggestion is to put space crews into suspended animation on long journeys with special drugs while automatic controls or signals from earth control the flight to Mars.

It seems certain that the first astronauts will be carefully handpicked—maybe one in thousands—on considerations of health, psychology, training and skills.

Each Saturday morning Democrat newspaperboys pay for the papers received the previous week. They collect from their subscribers to pay their accounts and to realize their profits. The newspaperboy receives full credit on subscriptions paid at the office. When subscribers do not pay, or let their subscription expire at the office, the boy usually puts faith in the subscriber and credits him, thus postponing his profits until a later date. To help this boy in his business, cooperation of subscribers in promptly paying their accounts is appreciated by the newspaperboy, his parents, and the newspaper.

Actor Prefers Film Over Live TV Show

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—"What," asks Tony Curtis, "is good television but good film?"

Live television, says this talented and handsome young movie actor, is a spot in which a performer can too easily drop dead.

"Live television simply isn't any good for me personally as an actor," he said the other day. "I've got a reputation. I've got to protect myself. And how can you protect yourself in live TV? Suppose you forget a line with the girl in your arms? You're dead." There's no re-take."

Curtis will soon make his TV dramatic debut—on film, naturally. In "Cornada," to be seen over CBS-TV Nov. 10. Curtis plays the role of a Mexican bull-fighter who fights to overcome the fear he suffers after a serious goring.

"'Cornada' is a simple story," he said. "I believe that a television story line has to be so simple that if you go away from your living room set for a couple of minutes you'll know what's going on when you come back.

"The trouble with a lot of TV shows is that they have too many characters. You go out to the refrigerator for a bottle of beer and when you come back there's somebody new on. You can't figure out what's happening."

Curtis, signed for four new pictures in the next year, still would like to find the time to try some more TV filmed dramatic shows. He has some interesting ideas.

"For one thing," he said, "I'd like to do the battle of David and Goliath. Not a great big dramatic show, but just the story of the battle itself—the build up between the young boy and the powerful giant. There could be some wonderful details. I'd like, for instance, two minutes of silent film just on David selecting the right stones for his sling."

Curtis also would like to do a filmed TV version of "Gulliver's Travels" and one of Aladdin.

KNOWS HIS GUN — Pvt. Richard P. Knows His Gun—that's his name, not a sentence—proves that, like his father, and grandfather, he deserves that moniker. Richard, now a Marine, hails from the Crow Indian Agency at Hardin, Mont. A veteran hunter, who started with a toy bow and arrow, he's polishing up the gun he'll use on a hunting trip planned for patients at the U.S. Naval Hospital, Oakland, Calif., where he's undergoing treatment.

HST Claims Ike Was Slow On Satellites

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Former President Truman charged last night that President Eisenhower was "agonizingly slow" to sense the new danger posed by the successful launching of a Russian satellite.

"And when made aware of it," Truman said, "he was slow to do what he ought to do."

In a speech peppered with scorn for the administration, particularly with reference to national defense and foreign affairs, the ex-president told a Jefferson-Jackson Day banquet audience:

"While the Russians were demonstrating their scientific advances, the administration was actually issuing secret orders cutting down on basic research in the defense establishment.

"These are serious blunders, shocking in the lack of judgment, imperiling our country's safety."

Truman said the Russian satellite may have proved a good thing, then added, in an apparent reference to Defense Secretary Neil McElroy: "The soap executive in the Defense Department is now attempting to put a few more bubbles in the research program."

The former president accused the administration of letting the U.S. defense system "go to pot for a mess of pottage called a balanced budget.

"The budget ought to be balanced," he said, "but not by the fakery of unilateral disarmament."

In a departure from his text, Truman recalled that the 1956 election was the first since the time of Zachary Taylor—something like 108 years, he said—that a victorious president has not carried his party to victory in the lower House of Congress.

"People must have had a lot of confidence in the administration to do that," Truman said with heavy sarcasm.

He assessed the "losses" under the Eisenhower administration as:

"Our economy is in confusion—the cost of living is rising constantly, the supply of money is being choked off, there are cutbacks in industry, a steady collapse of farm income, growing pockets of unemployment, and an increasing burden of interest charges. . . .

"These Republican businessmen," he said, "are heading us for another wringing out process that will make 1929 and 1930 look like a picnic."

The Mature Parent

Deal Carefully With The Humiliated Youngster

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE

That Sunday when John's sister had left for a date, he and his friend, Wes, got a stimulating idea.

They entered her room. With her powder, they whitened their faces. With her rouge, they painted their noses cherry red. With her eyebrow pencil, John made himself a Groucho mustache. They were giggling so hard they didn't hear the door open.

Unamused, John's mother said, "Good gracious, how would you like it if Sister treated your things like this?" Then she sent Wes home; and after ordering John to help her tidy his sister's dressing table, told him he'd have to spend the rest of the afternoon in his room.

Shortly before supper, she went back upstairs. To John, she said, "Now this punishment is over. Daddy and I have missed you. So we want you to come back downstairs to us and look at some TV cartoons."

She did not say "How would you like to come back downstairs and watch TV?"

For she knew that when you've been punished, pride makes it hard to confess your wish to rejoin the family community. As a person hurt by its disapproval, you fear to expose yourself to more of it. So you cannot jump up joyfully from your wounding isolation, crying, "Oh, thank you, for taking me off the hook! Indeed, I want very much to return to your good graces."

How we deal with a child who has been humiliated by punishment is as important to our tranquility as it is to his.

The Biblical text for parents approaching a child after punishment is, "God requires that which is past."

With its moral authority, we can reject the uncertainty that so often scares us into moralizing over his misdeed—and impels us into those cowardly questions that try to force him to admit his wish to return to the family fold. It enables us to take the initiative for him by inviting him back.

Gradually as he gains more experience of our genuine forgiveness, he can trust us with his wish for it. But until this growth is made, it is unfair to try and pry it out of him.

Over Half-Million Americans Have Cerebral Palsy

ST. LOUIS (AP)—More than half a million persons in the United States suffer from Cerebral Palsy and about 20 million Americans are afflicted with nervous disorders, Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education and welfare, said last night.

Folsom told 1,000 delegates and guests attending the eighth annual convention of the United Cerebral Palsy Associations that "our society no longer accepts this toll as inevitable."

"We are beginning to explore new frontiers of medical science with the ultimate goal of preventing these diseases."

Under state and federal vocational rehabilitation programs, Folsom said, 71,000 handicapped persons were returned to gainful employment last year.

But he added, "much remains to be done in the mobilization of community resources to cope with the problems posed by neurological disorders. The voluntary agency can and should play a crucial role in such mobilization."

A five-year-old boy who smiles despite his crutches and braces is the poster boy this year for the palsy associations.

Marvin Fields, Jr., of Miami, Fla., was presented to the convention last night. Marvin has had Cerebral Palsy since birth.

Ruth Millett Says

You Start to Age When You Let Future Scare You

Both women are in their 70's. One was planning to drive cross country alone. The other was trying to talk her out of it.

Asked the timid one: "What will you do if you have car trouble?"

Said the one happily planning the trip: "I don't expect to have car trouble. So I won't worry about that unless it happens."

The two women are about the same age. But one seems years older.

The reason for the seeming difference in their ages is probably due to a great extent to the fact that one always anticipates trouble and the other always expects that things will turn out all right.

The one who anticipates trouble quite naturally has gone through life taking few risks, having few adventures and assuming as little responsibility as possible.

In trying to protect herself against all risks, she has led a dull, uninteresting existence.

The one who doesn't expect the worst to happen has gone merrily on her way, tackling hard jobs, taking on responsibilities she could have ducked, having all kinds of interesting experiences.

The minute you begin to be fearful of the future you start limiting your experiences. You begin to grow old.

Miss Carolyn Rose Heck Exchanges Vows With Marion Eugene Thomas

Miss Carolyn Rose Heck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alva J. Heck, 2201 South Grand, and Marion Eugene Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Thomas, 320 East Chestnut, were united in marriage at 7:30 Friday evening, October 18, at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church. The Rev. Robert F. Rhodes performed the ceremony before an altar arranged with gladioli, mums and candelabra.

As the guests were being seated Miss Glenda Rhoads, organist, played "O Promise Me," "At Dawning," "O Perfect Love," and "Claire de Lune." While the mothers were seated she played "Always" and as Miss JoAnn Gehlken lighted the candles, "I Love You Truly."

Chester O'Bannon sang "Through the Years" and "The Lord's Prayer." The traditional wedding marches were used.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a terrace-length dress of frost white Chantilly lace over satin. The fitted bodice was fashioned with long tapering sleeves and an open cowl neckline. A wide cummerbund of pleated satin circled the midriff and was finished at the back with wide bustle-like loops of satin. The bouffant skirt was formed of many tiers of scalloped lace ruffles over a flounced net underskirt. The bridal headdress was a shell of matching lace shaping to a point at the center front. It was embroidered and outlined with pearls and held her elbow-length double illusion. Her only jewlery was a strand of pearls, a gift from the groom. She carried a colonial bouquet featuring a white orchid encircled by white roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Shirley Morris, wore a French lace dress of romance blue in a scallop pattern. It was designed with a very full ballerina-length skirt and a Sabrina neckline. A draped cummerbund of blue chiffon defined the snugly fitted bodice. She wore a bandeau of matching color and carried a colonial bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Rhoads and Miss Gehlken's dresses were of pink taffeta and chiffon and were fashioned after the maid of honor's dress.

Bob Lane served as best man. Bill Dey, Bob England and A. J. Heck were ushers.

The bride's mother wore a dress of Dior blue with winter white accessories. Mrs. Thomas, mother of the groom, wore a gray dress with black accessories. They wore identical corsages of pink roses.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the church. The bride's table, covered with white net over pink taffeta, was centered with a four-tier wedding cake, which was topped with a miniature bride and groom. Pink roses and greenery circled the cake. The corners of the table were decorated with roses.

Miss Mary Ann Dick cut the cake. Mrs. Charles Reine and Mrs. Edward Land presided at the punch bowl. Miss Eleanor Hillman was in charge of the guest book and Mrs. Fred Biggs took charge of the gift table.

For traveling the bride chose a beige sheath and matching coat with Grecian green and brown accessories.

The groom is a graduate of Smiht-Cotton High School and has completed two years in the Army. He is now employed at the Missouri Pacific shops. The bride is also a graduate of Smith-Cotton and is employed in the office at Town and Country Shoes.

Following a trip to Colorado Springs, Colo., they will reside at Weather's Kort.

The Rev. Kelvin performed the ceremony. The altar was adorned with chrysanthemums and lighted tapers.

The bride wore a two-piece black and white dress with matching accessories and corsage of white carnations.

Miss Mary Ann Arnold, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor. She wore a black and white taffeta dress, black accessories and white carnation corsage.

Ernest Arnold, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man.

PRE CHRISTMAS PLANNING

Seven more Sundays until Christmas and how fast they will go—many of us have given it so little thought, yet we know with the coming of Thanksgiving it will be later than we thought. May I suggest right now, you make a list and jot down a few suggestions and then start browsing. This year, you will find new items and new ideas mixed with the things we all love to give and to receive. Lingerie perhaps is the most accepted gift of any—new colors have been added so don't overlook it. Silver blue, sparkling green, new red and opaline are only a few of the new interesting shades. Purses both fancy and practical makes a wonderful gift. Trimmed white gloves with a beaded scarf is a pretty, practical gift. Of course, there is forever an unfinished story in separates to make any feminine heart happy. New shades of dyed-to-match such as bluebell, cherry and mint and many others. Bulky sweaters in gorgeous pastels that seem to melt truly have a festive look. Beautiful jeweled collars can be used by most everyone and don't we all love white linen handkerchiefs or a frothy pastel neck scarf—need I say more now for you to get busy with your list and enjoy your shopping tours this season.

No Time For Torpidity

The deafening, staccato-like noise of the air hammers on Sedalia's downtown business streets might be irritating if it were not for the knowledge the racket signifies progress.

Soon the digging of holes in the sidewalks and curbside trenches in the streets will cease and there will be erected new standards for fluorescent and vapor street lighting, and traffic lights.

Truly this is an improvement long needed to brighten up the downtown area. But this alone will not solve the problem of keeping Sedalia's shopping district centralized. It will help, the same as off-street parking which also is being provided for. All of these improvements are a good start in the broad program of city planning.

There are a great many elements in the technique of bringing people downtown to look into store windows and shop inside. One of these attractions is a Municipal Community Building designed for economy of operation of city administrative affairs, provision for community activities, indoor sports, entertainments, educational, cultural and religious events. Such a place will provide convention facilities, too, presently a definite retardant to Sedalia's recognition as a desirable convention center where people come to transact their organization business, be entertained, and spend money.

Business people naturally should be four-square for the bond issue which will provide these facilities. What helps Sedalia downtown business helps everybody.

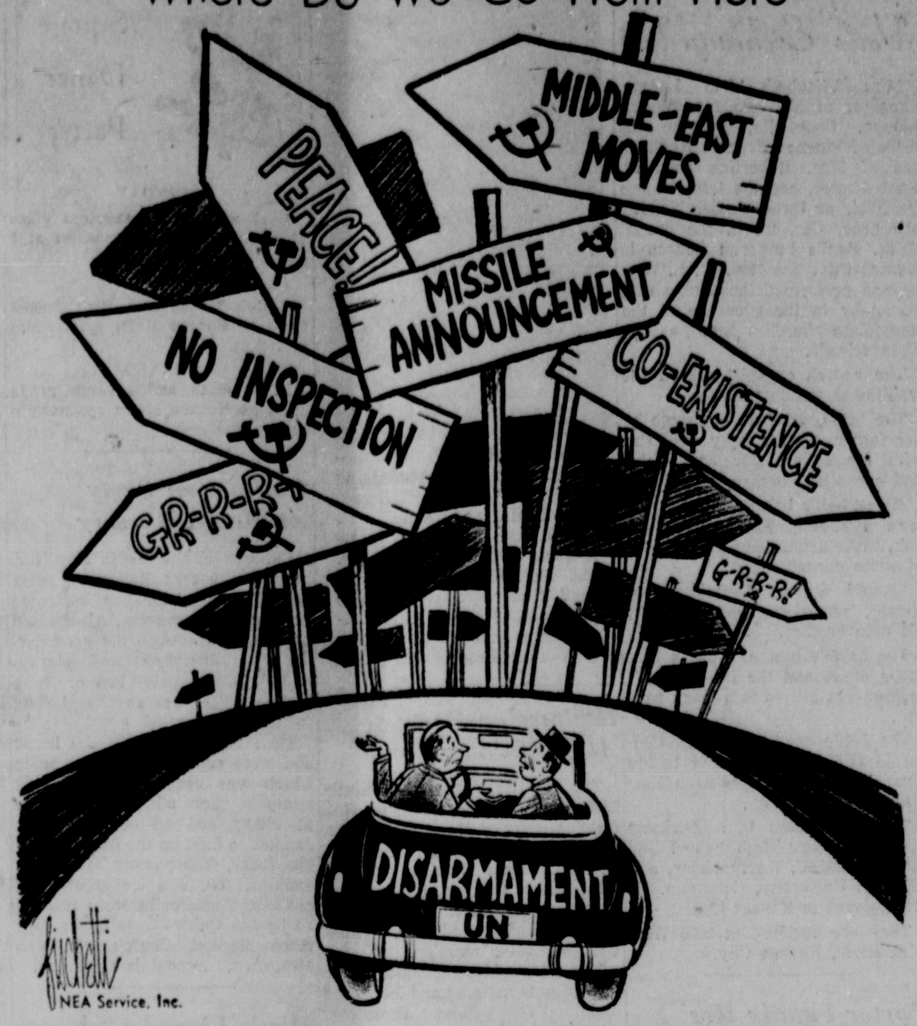
It's high time something more was done to perpetuate Sedalia's central business district by attracting outside people as well as the home folks. Otherwise the area may dry up. Then property values depreciate which progressively thrust dissipated tax sources upon the backs of the residential sections. If that ever happens Sedalia might as well change its name to Iconium.

Industrial prospects want more than a site for a location. They want their activities centered in a community free from traces of civic anemia.

Without industrial growth Sedalia isn't going anywhere. All the curbstone wailing of business people and those seeking jobs will not restore what has been attracted to other communities where there is a more enticing vista of the future because of vigorous civic-mindedness.

These are some of the reasons why Sedalians should show some animation about the bond election which comes Tuesday, November 5. And that means going to the polls and voting for it. This is no time for torpidity or sluggish consideration of the duty to take time out to express an affirmative opinion.

"Where Do We Go From Here"



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Hurricanes, Sputnik Closely Related

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—It may seem a long way from a closed-door meeting in the weather bureau recently to the prestige we lost over Sputnik, but there are certain connections just the same.

If the United States could discover a way to control hurricanes or predict their paths more accurately, it's hard to overestimate the propaganda victory we would win in the Far East and South America.

Japan, the Philippines, and the countries of Southeast Asia suffer millions of dollars of property damage and lose thousands of lives from these tropical storms which in the Eastern hemisphere are called "typhoons." Should the United States divert just one typhoon away from the flimsy wooden houses of a Japanese city, it would win the respect and gratitude of millions of Asians.

However, despite this, and despite Defense Secretary McElroy's new concern over basic research, the top brass of the Air Force are still refusing to keep three Air Force planes flying next year in the National Hurricane Research project.

At the closed-door meeting at the weather bureau, officers of the Air Weather Service of the Air Force reluctantly refused to discuss keeping the three research planes flying. They agreed with weather bureau meteorologists that the National Hurricane Research project is the most hopeful hurricane research in history. But they were under orders from Defense Department economizers not to discuss the three Air Force research planes now being stripped of their electronic recording equipment at Palm Beach, Fla.

Curtailed Research

Prospect now is that the weather bureau will have to get along by installing a small amount of electronic equipment on the 20 hurricane "Hunter" planes still assigned to it by the Air Force and Navy. In most cases, weather bureau meteorologists will be unable to ride along as they now do on the three specially equipped research planes.

The National Hurricane Research project was planned with the help of the world's top meteorologists three years ago after a rash of hurricanes brought havoc to U. S. coastal cities. It was then considered a long-range economy measure, for today a city like Miami can easily spend $1,000,000 just buttoning up against an approaching storm. When money like that is involved, the importance of accurately predicting a hurricane's course is obvious.

Meteorologists pointed out three years ago that the average hurricane is 350 miles wide and eight miles deep, filling the fantastic total of 1,000,000 cubic miles. The only way to discover how to control them, they said, was to record conditions in each of those million cubic miles — not once, but perhaps as often as every hour. This can only be done with an airplane equipped with electronic recording devices, since the human hand can't write fast enough while an airplane is flying through a storm.

The three special research planes can take readings every 10 seconds. By contrast, the "Hunter" planes, when equipped with a small amount of electronic equipment, will supply perhaps 1-1,000th as much data. They will continue. The other planes will not.

Note — It's ironic that the Air Force, which has abandoned its special role in hurricane research, is frequently the first to brag whenever one of the "Hunter" planes discovers a hurricane in time to warn a city.

Teddy Roosevelt Centennial Knifed

When President Eisenhower attended Centennial church services for Teddy Roosevelt on Sunday, few members of the congregation knew that one of Ike's chief lieutenants on Capitol Hill had previously scuttled a resolution calling for national honors to Teddy.

Earlier this year, Sen. James Murray (D., Mont.) introduced a resolution designating 1958 as a Theodore Roosevelt memorial year. This was to be in honor of the first National Conference on Conservation called in 1908 by Roosevelt and his Chief Forester, Gifford Pinchot.

Murray's resolution was backed by 63 Senators and received unanimous approval in the senate. However, when it got to the House Judiciary Committee, Kenneth Keating of New York, an Eisenhower Republican, led an onslaught on the bill that emasculated its provisions. As a result it never did get a final okay from congress. Keating comes from the same state that sent Teddy Roosevelt to the White House — New York. But, goaded by private utility lobbyists, Keating fought to water down the resolution. He feared public power enthusiasts might use the Teddy Roosevelt celebration as a base for attacking Eisenhower's contrary power policy. Keating's amendments would have limited expenditures for the Roosevelt Centennial to a paltry $20,000 and barred the soliciting of private contributions.

Ike had probably forgotten these facts when he attended the services at Grace Reformed Church here. He was spared additional embarrassment when the Rev. Dr. Daniel L. Marsh, Chancellor of Boston University, in his sermon identified the greatest Presidents as Washington, Lincoln, Teddy Roosevelt, Woodrow Wilson, and Dwight D. Eisenhower. The name of another Roosevelt was diplomatically omitted.

Guest Editorial

COLUMBIA TRIBUNE: County Planning Should Come Soon. The Missouri General Assembly, as its most recent session, adopted an amendment to the State statute governing county planning which would make it possible to set up a planning and zoning commission in Boone county with the same general program for the county, particularly the areas surroundig Columbia, that is undertaken by the city planning and zoning commission. We suggest that the city administration and the county court give this matter their earliest attention.

Columbia is now in the midst of one of its most significant undertakings in the last half century — the job of gettng rid of its unsightly and unhealthy slum areas. It is also taking steps to see that these slums are not simply transferred to another part of the city. One of the reasons for the city's recent ambitious annexation program was the desire to prevent development of new slum areas at its gates. But the annexation program provided only limited protection. The city is expanding so rapidly that we already see slum areas developing outside its new limits.

Neither the city nor the county at the moment has any control over these untoward developments, but they are bad for both the city and the county. Aside from all of the other unpleasant connotations of such developments around the edge of the city, they will, in the end, bring a blighting which will lower the county's tax revenues in the area.

The action to avert these developments is one which should not be put off. Once we have them, they will be with us a long time, and if we ever should get rid of them it would be a costly operation.

Cold Comfort

The news from Johns Hopkins that Dr. Winston H. Price has come up with the first successful vaccine against one of the principal viruses causing the common cold deserves to be hailed widely — and it will be.

In tests this particular vaccine was effective in 80 per cent of the cases where inoculations were made. But the virus in question is only one of many responsible for colds. It accounts for perhaps 30 per cent of such afflictions.

Amid the cheering, however, a few sad notes will be struck. When the common cold begins to go, along with it will go the best copper-riveted excuse for sleeping in that was ever devised by man.

A cold can be miserable. It can also be handy for ducking not just the office but a variety of onerous neighborhood affairs from overcrowded parties to draggy P.T.A. meetings.

And what are the magazines to do when they can no longer drum out pieces entitled: "What to Do About the Common Cold"?

We may indeed be glad when at last this pesky nuisance can be banished by a stroke of the needle. But we'll have to search long and hard to find another refuge so great and comforting.

Washington Perceives Hint Eisenhower Rose Is Fading

By PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Two Republican orators have recently put reverse thrust on President Eisenhower's "Modern Republicansim."

Speaking to the National Federation of Republican Women Board of Directors in Colorado, Robert K. Gray, an aide to the assistant to the President, Gov. Sherman Adams, declared:

"Those of you to whom I have spoken before know that I dislike being branded as a 'Modern Republican.' For the implication is that if you are not a modern Republican you are an antiquated one. And I hold firmly to the belief that there is still room in this great party of ours for men and women who are proud to say WITHOUT qualifying adjectives, 'I am a Republican.'"

Coming from a member of the White House staff, this sounded suspiciously like a new line straight from the elephant's mouth.

Charles S. Thomas, chairman of the Republican Finance Committee, put over something of the same idea from a different angle in a Cincinnati speech. In a tribute to the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, Thomas declared that: "He was neither a modern Republican nor a reactionary Republican. He was only a dedicated Republican."

GOP national headquarters here says that these two quotations are just from individuals expressing their personal views. It is insisted no official soft pedal is being applied to the Eisenhower program. There has been no change in policy on this and no directed effort to get modern and Old Guard Republicans to join hands in a unified GOP.

Going back to Meade Alcorn's first press conference after he was elected GOP national chairman last winter, however, it is recalled that he declined to go all out for modern Republicanism.

In planning his first series of Republican regional conferences Chairman Alcorn made clear there was to be no imposition of ideas from Washington. The party leaders were going back to the grass roots to find out what the people were thinking, he said.

Districts were to be left free to choose their own brand of Republican candidates, whether their ideas coincided with the President's or not. Even candidates who were a drag on the Eisenhower program were to get national committee support.

These are, of course, small signs. But they indicate some slight fading of the bloom on the Eisenhower rose.

This was evident also in the Republican neighbor-to-neighbor canvassing drives, just concluded.

Twenty-four states originally indicated they would take part in this campaign from Oct. 1 to 14, culminating in a White House rally on President Eisenhower's 67th birthday.

In the end only 14 states and the District of Columbia took part in the neighbor-to-neighbor campaign. Reports from counties and precincts haven't been compiled by the states as yet. But they weren't exactly a tremendous success and the birthday party was an anti-climax, compared with last year's show.

The amount of money pledged during the neighbor-to-neighbor campaign was something less than monumental. However, the main purpose of these campaigns was not to raise money. It was to find out where the non-registered voters are, persuade them to register and give them a fight talk on the Republican program.

Chairmen Alcorn had urged state Republican organizations to run pilot operations this year, so that they would be prepared for all-out campaigns next October, before the November congressional elections.

Re-jigger Missile Program?

Sputnik Outmodes Policy Of Keeping Feet on Ground

By JOSEPH A. DEAR
Of Our Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Pentagon can't crash through its $38 billion spending ceiling in spite of sputniks and red missiles.

Ike says, in effect, that $38 billion is a lot of $$$$$. And if the Pentagon wants to spend more on missiles, okay, provided that $38 billion ceiling isn't scratched.

That means the Pentagon will have to rejigger its plans if the missile program is to be stepped up. And that means other programs will suffer if the military decides to put more shoulder behind missile development.

The $38 billion ceiling on military spending, incidentally, is just about the most sacrosanct thing in the capital. The Army sought an exemption for its Little Rock expenses, but was mixed. So the penses, but was nixed. So the bite into military muscle.

Of course, everyone knows ex-Defense Secretary Charlie Wilson has his feet on the ground. As the following extract from the verbatim transcript of press conference, Nov. 16, 1954, demonstrates:

Question: "Mr. Wilson, what progress has the Defense Department made since 1948 when the Defense Secretary of that period said they were studying earth satellites and space ships?"

Wilson: "I like to try to get my feet on—you know, down to earth. I have enough problems on earth."

Question: "Is there any study under way at the present time?"

Wilson: "In this space ship business? Oh, no."

Question: "Forrestal wrote about it. There was a study in 1948. Has it been discontinued or is it still under way?"

Wilson: "You are going back too far for me. I don't know of any such study."

Question: "Well, there have been recent published reports that the Russians have given priority to the establishment of a space satellite. Are you concerned that they will beat us in the air with it?"

Wilson: "I wouldn't care if they did."

Question: "You really would not? You mean you wouldn't care if they get to the moon first?"

Wilson: "I would rather they go off to the moon or some other place than come over here."

Two Republicans of prominence haven't been stampeded by party colleagues who dismissed the Russian earth satellite as inconsequential.

They are Vice President Richard Nixon and Senator Styles Bridges of New Hampshire. Both expressed concern when Sputnik flashed across the sky. More credit to them for ignoring the trend, the trend set by Ike himself. ("Now so far as the satellite is concerned, that does not raise my apprehensions an iota.") And this is the record that trend produced:

Charlie Wilson, ex-Defense Secretary: "A nice scientific trick."

Clarence Randell, Ike's foreign economic policy adviser: "A silly scientific bauble." Randall was "personally very gratified that our nation was not first."

Donald Quarles, Deputy Defense Secretary: "No couse for alarm," about either the sattelites or Russian intercontinental ballistic missiles.

Max Rabb secretary to Ike's cabinet: "Without military significance."

Sherman Adams, presidential assistant: "The serving of science, not high score in an other speace basketball game, has been and still our country's goal."

Senator Barry Goldwater (R-Ariz.): "Hysteria just because the Russians have lobbed a basketball into outer space that goes beep, beep, beep."

Dr. Jordan Says

Shingles Often Especially Serious for Older People

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

It is a little difficult to say whether shingles or herpes zoster should be classified as a disease of the nerves or a virus Be that as it may, this strange disorder is caused by a virus and does involve the nerves. Or perhaps one should say the nerves of feeling or sensation.

In a review of herpes zoster published in a leading medical journal 206 cases were analyzed. Among the 32 patients under the age of 20 with shingles the condition cleared up in 30 in 14 days or less. In four elderly patients the symptoms lasted six months or longer.

The first sign of the disease is usually a pain or burning sensation which is confined to some part of the body and to one side only. Why it should be one-sided is still not known.

It is particularly common around the chest, the hips, the abdomen and the face. It is particularly serious when the eyes become involved.

In the review just mentioned, involvement of the eye did not occur in patients under the age of 20. It appeared to become more common in more or less direct relationship to age.

Herpes may come on immediately after an acute infection like pneumonia or meningitis. Sometimes it develops without obvious cause and sometimes comes in epidemics.

One of the curious features of shingles is its relationship to chicken pox. The virus particles of chicken pox and herpes zoster cannot be told apart by their physical appearance. Furthermore, there have been many reports of chicken pox occurring in people who came in contact with victims of shingles. Occasionally the opposite has been observed.

Many different kinds of treatment have been used for shingles. Soothing lotions or other preparations help a little. X-rays have been used with variable success. Antibiotics also may have some value. Anything which improves the general health is considered valuable. However, so far there is no single specific remedy.

In elderly people or those weakened by illness, herpes is often a particularly serious thing because it hangs on so long. The persistent pain is called postherpetic neuralgia.

When nothing else seems to work, cutting the nerve by surgery or other procedures on the nerves may have to be considered. Older people with nerve pain following shingles deserve the utmost sympathy. A study suggests progress in preventing postherpetic neuralgia may be made by more strenuous efforts to reduce the severity of acute attacks.

Odds and Ends
By News Staff

THE WOMAN HAD gone after a pair of shoes she was having fixed and the man who was tending to business for the shoe repair man told her the shoes were not ready but would be a little later.

The woman returned a second time for the shoes and again the repair man was not there and the man she had seen the first time told her the shoes were still not ready. As the woman started to leave, she took hold of what she thought was the door knob but instead was a yale lock, and it locked. It was a rather unusual lock, because you couldn't unlock it from the inside, it had to be unlocked with a key from the outside.

"Lawsy" said the provoked little man, "now you got us locked in here. Why for did you do that?"

"I didn't mean to," said the woman. "I was in a hurry and I just took hold of the wrong thing."

Two or three customers had gathered outside and the little man said he would go in the back of the shop and see if he could find the key. As the customers waited outside and the woman waited inside, he looked for the key and finally came back with several keys. He stuffed them through the slot in the door for mail and one of the customers on the outside picked them up, found the right one and opened the door.

Youth

The most of us are followers
Where other people lead,
For only a few as leaders
Are destined to succeed,
And youth finds life's first problem
When their leaders do they choose
It is the test of future life
On which they gain or lose,
This is the gay and careless time
When they have much to learn,
The time of life when straight ahead
May be a dangerous turn,
A time in life when love is strong
That may lead them astray,
They feel they are misunderstood
Unless you see their way;
A time when closest friends might be
The wrong type and unwise,
And green, green pastures that they see
Are pitfalls in disguise;
This is the bright and fearless age,
Delightful—but confusing—
When life is theirs and certainly
Is made to their own choosing;
Ah, yes, the pitfalls all are there
And those to lead them wrong
But mostly we will find today
Their characters are strong'
Delinquents are played up, of course,
Yet often we forget
The good things that teenagers do
And high goals that they set.
Too apt are we to judge them all
By just a rotten few,
Too often we believe the things
We couldn't prove are true;
And I remember rumors, too,
Back in my teenage days
And rumors all the years between
That told of teenage ways,
So I am not afraid a bit
Of anything predicted,
For I have watched the world move on
And seen this contradicted,
I know that there will be a few
Of weaklings who will fall
But what we hear of that frail few
Does not apply to all;
For most of youth is strong and fine,
It's trouble that we borrow,
The great percentage plan to be
Good citizens tomorrow,
They need a pat upon the back,
They're super—I would say—
For they are trying hard to be
Good citizens today.

DESIGN FOR SURVIVAL—Shown above is the result of five years' study of auto crashes by Cornell Aeronautical Laboratory of Buffalo and Liberty Mutual Insurance Co. of Boston. Designed with the sole aim of eliminating the major causes of passenger injuries and fatalities in smashups, the car affords maximum safety to its occupants without sacrificing exterior styling. Innovations include centrally seated driver, lever system to replace steering wheel and column, padding, seat belts or yokes and roll-over bars above passengers. Note one "club-car" seat facing rear. Outside, shock-absorbing material is sandwiched between the bumpers. Telephone booth-type doors and reinforced frame prevent cave-ins of the sides in collisions. The car is experimental only and not intended for production.

ASC Office Starts on 1958 Reserve Signup

The Pettis County ASC office began Nov. 1 to make contracts under the Soil Bank's 1958 Conservation Reserve program.

Carl E. Johnson, manager, said that they have on hand all the forms and information necessary for farmers to sign the Conservation Reserve contracts.

He said that there have been a number of changes made in the 1958 program. Most of these changes are to encourage signup of whole farm units and increased forestry and wildlife practices.

The basic elements of the Conservation Reserve remain unchanged from last year. This program is the long-time phase of the Soil Bank program, under which farmers contract to divert general cropland to soil, water, forestry, and wildlife conservation uses.

The types of payment on diverted acreage remain the same. First, there is a cost-sharing payment the year the farmer applies the conservation measure, and then there are annual per-acre payments each year the land is under contract.

The county ASC committee will establish a "Soil Bank base" for the farm before the Conservation Reserve contract is signed. If a base has already been established under the Acreage Reserve, that base may be used. The "base" for the farm is the average amount of land devoted to Soil Bank base crops on the farm in 1956 and 1957.

Details of the program are available at the ASC office.

Hazel Palmer Advises That Girls Prepare for Career

By ALICIA HART
NEA Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON — If your mind wanders in class, girls, just make sure you're day dreaming about landing a good job instead of a man.

Miss Hazel Palmer of Sedalia, Mo., president of the National Federation of Business and Professional Woman's Clubs, believes that in the future more and more women are going to have to go to work. And a lot of these gals will be married, too.

That's why she warns co-eds: "Don't use college as a marking-time period to the altar." Instead, she urges college girls to take courses that will train them to hold down a definite job.

Miss Palmer believes a girl should start planning for a secure future long before ever setting foot on a campus. "By all means," the BPW president declares, "a high school girl should see that she educates herself for her future existence and progress."

Miss Palmer strongly recommends that if a girl is unable to attend college, she should get some kind of job training while going to high school.

Miss Palmer points to the booming economy as a strong indication of the future needs for more womanpower. For example, she cites the increased number of homes mushrooming across the country. As more houses are built, more goods will be needed to furnish them.

In order to meet this demand for household furnishings and appliances, she says more women probably will have to join the labor force to manufacture and help buy them.

She explains that a family with several children will be especially affected by the high standard of living.

"In due time," Miss Palmer says, "the woman in that home will have to go to work to help make enough money to give each child the advantages of life a woman wants her children to have. This includes a college education."

When it comes to work, the top BPW official can do a lot more than make predictions or give advice. Miss Palmer daily sets an example of female initiative and activity that would amaze the most energetic corporation president.

Being president of the BPW requires her to represent the 170,000-woman organization at important national conventions and conferences throughout the United States. Last year she attended more than 150 meetings. And in one week she was on hand for six events, all of them in different states.

Hazel Palmer

When trying to meet a heavily booked schedule, Miss Palmer reveals that she never has time to sit down and relax. "I just keep moving," she says.

In addition to her time-consuming work with BPW, Miss Palmer is a practicing attorney in Sedalia, and a member of several legal organizations.

She joined BPW in 1935. And except for the first few months of her membership, she has always held some kind of office in the large organization. She became national president last year.

Jane Morgan Bemoans Lack Of Glamor

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Many women television performers "are trying so hard to look natural that they come out looking like a sack of beans."

That's not this department talking. It's singer Jane Morgan, who is blonde and beautiful and does not look at all like a sack of beans. Maintaining a position of stolid male neutrality on the subject of women's clothing, we merely report what Miss Morgan tells us:

"Too many women perfomers are forgetting they should be show business personalities. They come on camera wearing dresses that any self-respecting housewife wouldn't wear to the grocery store."

Still quoting Miss Morgan, who makes many TV guest appearances besides producing hit records and playing night clubs:

"These women are supposed to represent the chic and glamor of America to the world—and look at them! They make thousands of dollars and wear only one cheap dress in a half-hour show. In night club performances women go to great pains and expense to create variety of costume in a half-hour performance. Personally I spend $1,000 apiece for gowns when I'm playing clubs.

"People expect and deserve to see glamor in their performers. But on television women aren't glamorous any more; they're merely casual. The American viewing public is getting gypped and it doesn't like it."

Miss Morgan believes that Dinah Shore started the "casual look" in TV women performers. Miss Shore, to quote Miss Morgan, can get away with it because she's a great performer and varies casual attire with "glamorous" dresses.

But numerous young ladies who have imitated Miss Shore's casual TV manner simply haven't been able to match her taste in clothing, says Miss Morgan. She names names. But you won't read them here. Who wants to get caught in the middle of a ladies' clothing war?

The welcome speech was given by Anna Lee; a dialogue, "The Sewing Circle," was presented by all the girls; "Apple Tree for Rent" and "The Haunted House" were given by the boys; song "Red River Valley" by the entire school. Closing speech was shared by Lois DeMott and Harold Banta.

Other pupils taking part were Billy Aldrich, Jimmie Dillon, Wallace Reed, Walter Dillon, Peter Felton, Donna DeMott, Pat Wallace, Earlene Wolfe, Kay Twyman, Joyce Reed, Jackie Heuerman, Donald Aldrich, Kenneth Twyman, Francis Owens, Karen DeMott, Shirley Stean and Harold Wolfe.

A musical program, under the direction of Miss Ruth Bockelman, was presented by the Rainbow Ramblers. Musicians taking part were: Janet Count, Carol Dedrick, Ralph Reed, Earnest Matthuss, Albert Reine, Merin Welpman, Sharon Ondraondracek, Cathy De Bort, Shirley Stean and Bobby Stean. An accordion solo was given by Lorine Heuerman.

Ginger Rogers Outlines Two Busy Moves

By BOB THOMAS

NEW YORK (AP)—"I'm not married any longer, so why shouldn't I work as hard as I can? Idleness breeds mischief or depression, so I'm going to keep busy."

This was Ginger Rogers' explanation of why she is making two important moves in her career:

1. Playing her first night club since she was a kid in Galveston.

2. Returning to a stage musical for the first time since 1930.

Looking slim, trim and ageless in her hotel suite, Ginger talked about her future. Obviously her marriage to Jacques Bergerae is over, finished, dead. But she isn't moping.

"Las Vegas has been after me to play there for five years," she said. But I chose to go back to night clubs in a brand-new hotel in Havana because it was new. I'd be the first star to appear there. I'm looking for new challenges."

"Starting January 28, I begin touring for a year in the national company of 'Bells are Ringing,'" she continued. "Now you might ask why I do the show when it isn't new.

"The reason is that I haven't found a script that is so ideally suited to my talents. 'Bells,' which Judy Holliday did originally—and very well—is something that fits me."

Also, she has done some TV appearances here and has several more lined up.

She expects to take the show to nine towns.

"I'm going to see how hard the show is on me," she added. "If it's not too bad, I may make a picture while the show is running in Los Angeles."

What?

"Sure," she said airily. "What's so hard about that?

"When I was appearing in 'Girl Crazy' here in 1930, I made five movies and thought nothing of it.

Just so she won't get bored, she is also planning to keep a diary of her adventures on the road which she'll make into a book.

I asked her where she got all that drive.

"I don't know," she said thoughtfully. "It's always been there."

Not a Bonanza

First Stockholders in Ford See Value of Shares Drop

NEW YORK, Nov. 2 (AP)—"Ford stock to go on sale."

Those words streamed across front pages of newspapers throughout America two years ago this week, heralding one of the most exciting business stories of the 20th Century.

Two years later, the question arises—how have those original 350,000 public shareholders of the giant Ford Motor Co. fared?

Generally speaking, they've done just about as well as the nine million other Americans who own common stock in other corporations.

They have pocketed regular dividends of $2.40 per share a year, a steady yield of 3.72 per cent on their original outlay of $64.50 a share. They've also seen the quoted value of their shares drop around 200 million dollars—part of the decline coming last year when the auto industry fell considerably below its hot 1955 pace and most of the remainder in the recent over-all market slump.

In short, the stock has not proven to be the bonanza which many folks had hoped it would be. Its performance recalls the words of caution voiced by Henry Ford II, president, just before the offering of the 10,200,000 shares.

"I think," said Ford, "some people are indulging in wishful thinking about their chances for fast and fabulous financial gains. We are businessmen and not miracle men."

On Sunday, Nov. 6, 1955, the Ford Foundation announced it would sell some of its holdings in the company, giving the public a chance to own Ford stock for the first time in 52 years.

Within hours, brokerage houses from Massachusetts to Oregon were deluged with calls from would-be buyers. The problem from the start was one of rationing the shares to allow as wide participation as possible.

On Dec. 21, 1955, the public's appetite was whetted even more when Ford took the wraps off its financial operations for the first time, in a registration with the New York Stock Commission.

In the ensuing weeks before the Jan. 18, 1956 offering, the question firing the imagination of the press and the public was: What will the stock cost? Guesses ranged from $60 to $70 a share.

The price of $64.50 was decided upon after talks between the Ford Foundation and seven investment houses, which served as co-managers of the underwriting group numbering 700 investment houses and 1,300 securities dealers.

Looking back, Robert W. Fisher, vice president of Blyth Co., says, "it was a colossal job. The underwriters alone had 20 meetings on the subject."

In the initial burst of over-the-counter trading, the stock sped up to around $70. In following weeks, it slipped back to below $60, then recovered a few dollars before going on the New York Stock Exchange March 7, 1956.

Wall Street observers said the stock sagged shortly after it came out because it was the victim of unfortunate timing; auto makers were cutting back and the stock market was ragged; many traders, looking for a fast profit, sold the stock quickly and contributed to the drop; some investors sold because they weren't able to get as many shares as they wanted at the offering price. If an investor asked for 100 shares and was allotted only 10, he may have felt it was not worth bothering with such a small amount.

After going on the "big board," the stock traded between $51.62 and $63.37 during the balance of 1956. In the first eight months of this year, it sold between $53.25 and $59.62. Recently it touched a low of $42.25 in the midst of the bear market.

At its latest price of around $45, Ford stock is down 32 per cent from the offering. General Motors over the same period is off 12 per cent from $43.50 to $38.25, and Chrysler 14 per cent from $80.50 to $69.25.

Examples can be given of numerous stocks which are down 40 to 55 per cent from their bull market highs of 1955 and '56.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks has declined 11 per cent since the Ford offering.

This week the Ford stock enjoyed a mild rise following a glowing earnings report from the July-August-September quarter. Profits for the three months were 58½ million dollars, up 328 per cent from 13½ millions last year but still under the 77¾ millions in the same quarter of booming 1955.

A factor in Ford's future success will be the public's response to the Edsel, its new medium price model developed at a cost of more than 250 million dollars. Detroit experts think it's too soon to give a good appraisal of the Edsel. They say it has been bucking an industry-wide cleanup of outgoing 1957 models, which are selling at bargain prices.

Maiden Voyage

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Julian Torres, 38, went to a used car lot to buy a car. An obliging salesman told Torres to "try out" a 1951 model.

Police reported Torres drove into a fence near the lot, then went a few more blocks before smashing into a building.

Investigation showed it was the first time Torres ever had driven a car.

Research Center Helps Solve Problems For Newspapers

By S. PARNELL LEWIS
News Editor
the Easton (Pa.) Express

EASTON, Pa. (AP)—This community—90 minutes from Broadway and Independence Hall—has become a mecca for newspapermen this side of the Iron Curtain.

In the mecca is the only research laboratory in the world devoted exclusively to putting the mechanical problems of newspapers under the scientific eye of trained research men.

The American Newspaper Publishers Assn. initiated the idea in 1946. Three years later it started the studies in the downtown area of this eastern Pennsylvania community on the Delaware River.

On June 20, 1951, the laboratory moved to a new, one-story brick building of 8,400 square feet on the city's outskirts. In 1955 an addition of 2,000 square feet was opened. The structure and its contents are valued at more than $600,000.

Today its 24 employes work to achieve faster and better methods of producing newspapers more economically.

Last year the laboratory had 358 professional visitors. They came from all over the United States, Canada, Denmark, Sweden, Japan, Australia, England, Central and South America, the Netherlands and Germany.

IMPROVING NEWSPAPERS: An employe at the American Newspaper Publishers Assn. research center in Easton, Pa., adjusts a newspaper plate to a machine which will determine how much the plate will be distorted by cen trifugal force.

P. A. Weber, a printing trade executive from the Union of South Africa, said after a visit: "Our party was astounded. If we saw nothing else, this visit alone justified our visit to the United States."

The center does research for 90 per cent of the newspapers in the United States and 50 per cent of those in Canada.

Its developments often are as unnoticeable to a reader as a baseball manager's signs are to a spectator. But like the manager's strategy calls, bringing victories, so the laboratory tells newspapers how to improve the product. In doing this, the research center is helping the newspaper industry meet competition from other forms of communication.

Presently the laboratory has three main projects designed to improve newspapers. According to Alfred S. Taylor, laboratory director, they are:

1. TIME SAVER—the lab has developed a special backing for a mat used in the stereotype process. It is commercially available and cuts valuable minutes off the old procedure of hand treatment that often contributed to missing the scheduled press start.

2. REPRODUCTION QUALITY STUDY—Taylor explained that this involves determination of the basic measurements that effect the entire reproduction process. "This is the closest thing to a basic study the lab has at the present time," he said. "We are measuring things never measured before, such as how much a plate is thrown off the press by centrifugal force and plate distortion due to lockup procedures."

A flying plate can wreck a press and cause a shutdown of hours and even days. Plate distortion has been a headache for countless years.

3. NEWSPRINT QUALITY CONTROL—"This is receiving great emphasis," Taylor explained. "The lab is measuring the physical characteristics of newsprint used in the pressroom. Although eventually the lab will check newsprint of all manufacturers in the United States and Canada, it now is interested in measuring the variations that exist in newsprint." He predicted the findings in this field and that of black printing inks will result in a better newspaper.

Last November, ANPA integrated its lab with the Institute of Newspaper Operations (INO). The step enabled the Easton lab to concentrate research on areas of high cost in newspaper production. The INO, which employs 10 in its Chicago headquarters, took over the industrial engineering phase of the program.

"Each phase balances the other," said Taylor. "Our engineers in the field can help publishers to get the best out of presently available machines and materials through methods improvement and cost control. Our laboratory scientists can work on the development of newer and better machines, materials and processes."

Many years ago a newspaper, caught in a circulation battle for survival, decided to print its front page headlines in red ink. The innovation lasted until women readers presented bills for white gloves damaged when they came into contact with the inferior ink.

Today a newspaper would turn to the ANPA lab before rushing to a venture like this. And it can look to the lab for the latest findings that won't bring bills for damaged wearing apparel. Instead the newspaper will find the lab can tell them how to produce a better product more economically and at a faster pace.

FEATHER FEATURE — Albert R. Arviso, a Navajo student at the Indian school in Albuquerque, N.M., models his Kiowa-type costume. The Indians of the Southwest have been in need of fancy feathers for use during their ceremonial dances ever since the government cut off their normal supply by banning the import of parrot feathers from Mexico in 1946. Since then, the Washington, D.C., Zoo has been saving the plumes of shedding birds and shipping them to Indians.

Modern Woodmen, PTA Hold Hallowe'en Party at Horace Mann

The Modern Woodmen of America and the Horace Mann PTA together sponsored a Hallowe'en party in each room at Horace Mann School Thursday, Oct. 31. The Modern Woodmen furnished all the prizes and favors. The children in the first four grades dressed in costumes and paraded through all the rooms.

The Modern Woodmen provided a rubber ball for each child in the school, and a balloon for the children in the primary grades. Refreshments were served in each room by the room mothers.

W. G. Parsons, local representative of the Modern Woodmen of America, was in charge of arranging for the party. He stated that he hopes its success will form a basis for other similar annual affairs. Parsons said, "Modern Woodmen of America has sponsored similar costume parties in hundreds of communities in the United States as part of its program for furthering the general welfare of the youth of the nation, and in conformity with its policy of contributing to local community progress."

Music Club Studies German Composers

The Knob Noster Music Makers Club met Saturday afternoon, Oct. 28, at the home of Mrs. Charles Covey with the mothers as guests.

Donna Lee Saults, president, presided over the meeting. The salute to flag was given and last verse of "America" was sung with Mrs. Covey and Ruth Lynde at the piano, and Jimmy Lewis accompanying on the accordion.

The study for the afternoon was of the old German composers. Jim Johnson gave a brief talk on the country of Germany and when roll call was made each member answered with the name of a German composer and a sketch of his life.

Piano selections were played by Lavon Taraba, Donna Costigan, Lynda Powers, Ruth Lynde, Cathy and Cindy Conboy and Jim Johnson. Jimmy Lewis played an accordion solo.

The house was decorated in Hallowe'en colors, pumpkins, witches and autumn leaves.

Mrs. Covey, assisted by the girls, served refreshments in keeping with the Hallowe'en theme.

The next meeting will be Nov. 30.

Film Horse Has Protest For Writer

By CHARLES MERCER

NEW YORK (AP)—Walking down Madison Avenue the other day, I ran into this horse fresh in from Hollywood who buttonholed me and said:

"Interview me."

Why interview a horse — even a talking horse?

"Look, pardner," said the horse, "I've been sent east as a representaitve of the National Federation of Sons of the Saddle Sores. It's a sort of an association like that us horses have organized to bring public attention to the horse in opera. Horse opera, that is.

"Did you know that on the three television networks there are now 27 or 28 or something horse operas—I know they call 'em adult westerns, but to us horses they're still horse operas. Because where would any of 'em be without horses?

"Well, sir, us horses have noticed that some of you eastern dudes who write about television haven't been paying much attention to these—er—adult westerns."

"Well," I said to the horse, "the reason is that there just isn't much to say about—er—adult westerns. Sure, there's lots of action and the good guys win over the bad guys and—"

"Wait a minute," said the horse. "There's plenty to say. You just ask us horses. That's why I'm here. Take out your pencil and write this down.

"It's high time somebody said a word for us horses. Do you realize that not a single cowboy has kissed one of us all season? No, sir. They're going around kissing girls now.

"Can you imagine a cowboy kissing girls? It never was that way in the good old days of Roy Rogers and Gene Autry. They know that a man's best friend is his horse. These new fellas think a man's best friend is his girl.

"A lot of these newcomers just don't understand us horses."

The 1958 March of Dimes campaign will be held Jan. 14-31.
